Director for Limit on Ghana Chief He Says Tossed Out Tide Has Turned

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- Applicants are being sought for the job of clinic administrator to run the nine new mental retardation clinics to be built in Missouri.

Norris F. Steenburger, director of the state personnel division, said applications for the merit system jobs must be filed by March 21.

After examinations, administrators will be appointed for the clinics at Joplin, Albany and Sikeston. Later, similar jobs will be filled at the new clinics in Kirksville, Hannibal, Kansas City, Springfield, Rolla and Poplar Bluff.

The pay ranges from $803 to $1,075 a month.

NEW YORK (AP) -- President Johnson, pledging no "mindless escalation" of the war in Viet Nam, says "the tide of battle has been turned there."

Johnson, in a national television-radio address from a hotel ballroom here, said Wednesday night the United States fights in Viet Nam for a limited objective -- "to prevent the success of aggression" and is using the minimum necessary force "under what I believe is careful control."

The war, he said, never will be expanded into a direct conflict with Communist China "by any act of ours--and not if there is any reason left behind the wild words of Peiping."

Reflecting some of the optimism that has seemed evident among top Washington officials in recent weeks, Johnson said flatly the tide of battle has been turned. While he did not elaborate, he apparently based the statement on reports of mounting Communist casualties and defections.

Johnson's address in accepting the annual national Freedom Award of Freedom House, a nonpartisan organization, represented a reply to critics of his Viet Nam policy.

The President, in his speech, replied to questions raised frequently in recent hearings by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

These were Johnson's main points:

The United States fights for a limited objective, will not engage in mindless escalation, will give its troops all the help they need, will try to avoid war with Communist China, seeks social and political reform in South Viet Nam, will abide by the results of any free election there, and will continue searching for peace.

How long will the war last? Said Johnson: "To that question I can give no answer tonight. . . If the aggressor persists in Viet Nam, the struggle may be long."

Pressures on Webster Groves Teenagers Called 'Too Great'

WEBSTER GROVES, Mo. (AP)—The 16-year-olds in this typical upper middle-class suburb are engaged in an "Academic ulcer derby" pining over their books mainly because they see a dollar sign on every page, a sociologist says.

Dr. Arthur Barron with the University of Chicago conducted a six-month survey of all the 16-year-olds in Webster Groves--688 of them. He said they are "too good for their own good" and that they have an overriding fear of losing their families' financial security.

Barron says the youngsters in the St. Louis suburb are typical of 16-year-olds in well-to-do areas which have achieved "the American dream of affluence and security." But he says they are paying "a terrible price because of the enormous pressure on them for good grades and success in later life."

"We were staggered to learn how much the pressure of getting into college bears on them," Barron said.

The study showed that 54 per cent said they had cheated on exams, indicating the pressure that was on them to get good grades, he said, noting that 86 per cent of the 16-year-olds had signed an honor code not to cheat and to report any cheating. Most are high school juniors.

The results of Barron's survey, which began last September, will be used by CBS-TV Friday night in a special news program.

Barron presented the results yielded by his questionnaires and interviews to school officials, teachers and students Wednesday.

ACCRA, Ghana (AP) -- Led by a colonel, the army revolted today and overthrew the Kwame Nkrumah government. It declared him ousted from the presidency.

The self-styled redeemer, designated president for life after Ghana won its independence, was en route to North Viet Nam as the army moved in. Peking Radio said he was being honored at a dinner in the Chinese capital. It reported no reaction to the coup.

What effect the army takeover will have on Ghanaian foreign policy was not clear. Nkrumah frequently supported the Communist line in world affairs, but also accepted Western aid in developing Ghana's aluminum resources.

The pre-dawn coup led by elements of the second brigade was announced by Radio Ghana.

Fighting between troops and president's security guards was continuing four hours later in Nkrumah's Flagstaff House residence. Small arms fire could be heard and smoke from burning vehicles and buildings could be seen from outside the walled compound which houses all Ghana government executive offices.

The coup leader was identified by the radio as Col. E. K. Kotoka, 40, commander of the second brigade based in the northern city of Kumasi.

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey told congressional leaders today he returned from Southeast Asia "with a spirit of restrained optimism and confidence" that the Communists can be defeated in South Viet Nam and a better life built for the people there.

Meeting with newsmen at the White House after long briefing sessions that involved some 200 Congress members, Humphrey said--as did President Johnson in a New York speech Wednesday night--that "the tide of battle has turned."

The vice president said "we have now reached the stage where our military forces can sustain a planned, methodical forward movement" backed by concerted efforts to achieve social and economic reforms.

He said the Communist forces in South Viet Nam once were able to choose whether or not to face American troops at any given time.

Now, he said, the United States and the South Vietnamese are subjecting the Viet Cong guerrillas to continuous and effective planned military operations.

"And this will be intensified," he reported.

At Johnson's invitation, Humphrey and other top officials gathered in the White House to brief congressional leaders of both parties and, after that session, all members of the Senate and House committees handling appropriations, armed services matters and foreign affairs.

Meeting newsmen later, Humphrey gave a "digest" of his report to the Congress members and answered questions.

With him was roving ambassador W. Averell Harriman who had accompanied him on his nine-country tour of Asia and the Pacific area that ended Wednesday.

Humphrey and what Johnson described as his "mission of peace" to nine countries has also been pulled into the debate with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee seeking to question the vice president about the commitments he made, specifically in foreign aid.

Thus Humphrey, who returned Wednesday night, barely had time to shake the dust of the Orient from his shoes before stepping back into the center of things with his briefing of congressional leaders and Congress members most deeply involved in Viet Nam legislation.

From them have come the most vocal of the hawks and doves in the argument over whether the United States is doing too much or too little in Viet Nam.

Two Held on Check Charge

Two Alton, Ill., residents are being held in the city jail after their arrest Wednesday on a charge of passing worthless checks.

They are William and Mary Stewart, who are accused of cashing checks at the A and P store, Liberty Market, and at Kroger's, and Edwards IGA, signed by the woman. Two checks, each for $25, were passed at Libertys and Krogers, and a third was attempted at the A and P for the same amount.

Lawrence Clegg, manager of the A and P, became suspicious when he saw the pair going to the Kroger store, and then to Edwards IGA. He called police.

The pair was apprehended at the latter store, taken to the police station, and booked on the bad check charge.

Heavy Bootheel Snow

The Bootheel dug out today from deep snow, ranging from three inches in the northern part of Scott county to seven inches in Dunklin county.

The snow pattern varied. The fall began with a light snow Wednesday. By nightfall it became heavier.

St. Genevieve county, the northernmost county to receive it, had only enough to cover the ground, as it was in Elsimore to the west, and Fredericktown. The fall graduated upward to three inches at Poplar Bluff.

Sikeston reported five inches with New Madrid and Portageville, having slightly more.

Parma on the southwest, reported more than six inches. The heaviest snow was from Blytheville south, with Little Rock, Ark., getting nine inches. Paducah, Ky., barely had enough snow to cover the ground.

Highways north of Sikeston were reported in fairly good condition but south they are filled with slush and slick in places.

Clear, cold weather was forecast for tonight in the Bootheel with a little warmer temperatures Friday. There was no more snow forecast.

Viet Cong Strikes Back

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) -- A Viet Cong battalion slashed across a minefield early today and attacked elements of the U. S. 1st Infantry Division in one of the heaviest Communist assaults against the GIs.

The Americans beat off the attackers with a barrage of mortar and artillery fire, killing at least 89 Reds and wounding 11, according to reports from the scene. U. S. casualties overall were described as light but some small units took moderate losses.

The 3 1/2-hour battle took place near Tan Binh in the jungles 30 miles north of Saigon, where thousands of infantrymen on Operation Mastiff have been looking for several hard-core Viet Cong regiments since Monday.

A U.S. Marine company battled another Viet Cong battalion equipped with automatic weapons outside Ky My, a village near Da Nang, 380 miles north-east of Saigon. With armed helicopters backing them up, the Leathernecks killed 25 Communists and put the rest to flight, a Marine spokesman said.

Down the coast, a Marine patrol spotted 20 Viet Cong near Chu Lai and called in howitzers to fire on them. The Marines spotted only six fleeing the scene and presumed the rest were either killed or wounded.

Despite heavy rain, American jets hit North Viet Nam again Wednesday, using radar in some cases to get on target, spokesmen reported. Navy carrier planes flew six missions at altitudes of 500 to 2,000 feet, (Continued on page 10)

Died for 'Pushed Around' People

NEW YORK (AP) -- President Johnson departed from his prepared speech on Viet Nam Wednesday night to read a letter from the father of a soldier killed in the war.

The President said the father had written of his son:

"This good, young American, as thousands like him, was not on the other side of the world fighting specifically for you or me, Mr. President."

"He was fighting in perhaps our oldest American tradition--taking up for people who are being pushed around."

Johnson did not say who the author of the letter was, but he was later identified as Merriam Smith, White House correspondent for United Press International.

Smith's oldest son, Capt. Albert M. Smith Jr., was killed in a helicopter crash in Viet Nam last week.

Mental Health Division's Funds Are Restricted to Earnings

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) -- Missouri's Mental Health Division will have to stay within its earnings fund in meeting capital improvement needs. That was the word House Appropriations Chairman Bernard (Doc) Simcoe brought back to his committee today after a conference with Gov. Warren E. Hearnes and Budget Director John C. Vaughn.

It means the division can't have to $7.6 million in building funds the governor had recommended but, instead, must stay within its earnings. They are estimated to total about $5 million during the fiscal year.

Dr. George A. Ulett, director of the division conceded on Wednesday night the agreement had been made that the earnings fund would be used only for capital improvements at mental health institutions. But, he said, he presumed if building needs exceed the earnings fund the difference would come from general revenue.

"That was not my understanding," Simcoe said. He went to the governor's office today to clear it up.

Returning to the committee session he said the division's building money can't exceed the earnings funds "unless we can find the money someplace else."

Ulett also suggested to the Senate committee that a law be passed to permit all the earnings funds of the hospitals to be pooled in one fund.

He said that would permit development of a long range planning program instead of waiting until a roof leaks before coming to the legislature with a specific request.

Earlier, Ulett expressed satisfaction concerning the new budget and the governor's recommendation that operating funds come entirely from general revenue. Earnings funds were not reliable in meeting monthly bills, he said.

The change in the method of funding would enable the division to engage in some long-range planning to meet the demands for new hospital facilities.

"It's much better than the piecemeal improvements each year or two just to keep up," he said, "and would save millions in the long run."

Capital improvements came under close scrutiny during the testimony of Dr. Donald B. Peterson, superintendent of State Hospital No. 1 at Fulton.

Peterson was explaining a $50,000 request for planning new facilities to replace two Civil War era ward buildings at the Fulton hospital.

Ultimately, the replacement cost is estimated at $15 million.

He Says Tide Has Turned

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey told congressional leaders today he returned from Southeast Asia "with a spirit of restrained optimism and confidence" that the Communists can be defeated in South Viet Nam and a better life built for the people there.

Meeting with newsmen at the White House after long briefing sessions that involved some 200 Congress members, Humphrey said--as did President Johnson in a New York speech Wednesday night--that "the tide of battle has turned."

The vice president said "we have now reached the stage where our military forces can sustain a planned, methodical forward movement" backed by concerted efforts to achieve social and economic reforms.

He said the Communist forces in South Viet Nam once were able to choose whether or not to face American troops at any given time.

Now, he said, the United States and the South Vietnamese are subjecting the Viet Cong guerrillas to continuous and effective planned military operations.

"And this will be intensified," he reported.

At Johnson's invitation, Humphrey and other top officials gathered in the White House to brief congressional leaders of both parties and, after that session, all members of the Senate and House committees handling appropriations, armed services matters and foreign affairs.

Meeting newsmen later, Humphrey gave a "digest" of his report to the Congress members and answered questions.

With him was roving ambassador W. Averell Harriman who had accompanied him on his nine-country tour of Asia and the Pacific area that ended Wednesday.

Humphrey and what Johnson described as his "mission of peace" to nine countries has also been pulled into the debate with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee seeking to question the vice president about the commitments he made, specifically in foreign aid.

Thus Humphrey, who returned Wednesday night, barely had time to shake the dust of the Orient from his shoes before stepping back into the center of things with his briefing of congressional leaders and Congress members most deeply involved in Viet Nam legislation.

From them have come the most vocal of the hawks and doves in the argument over whether the United States is doing too much or too little in Viet Nam.

They are William and Mary Stewart, who are accused of cashing checks at the A and P store, Liberty Market, and at Kroger's, and Edwards IGA, signed by the woman. Two checks, each for $25, were passed at Liberty's and Kroger's, and a third was attempted at the A and P for the same amount.

Lawrence Cleek, manager of the A and P, became suspicious when he saw the pair going to the Kroger store, and then to Edwards IGA. He called police.

The pair was apprehended at the latter store, taken to the police station, and booked on the bad check charge.

Heavy Bootheel Snow

The Bootheel dug out today from deep snow, ranging from three inches in the northern part of Scott county to seven inches in Dunklin county.

The snow pattern varied. The fall began with a light snow Wednesday. By nightfall it became heavier.

St. Genevieve county, the northernmost county to receive it, had only enough to cover the ground, as it was in Elsinore to the west, and Fredericktown. The fall graduated upward to three inches at Poplar Bluff.

Sikeston reported five inches with New Madrid and Portageville, having slightly more.

Parma on the southwest, reported more than six inches. The heaviest snow was from Blytheville south, with Little Rock, Ark., getting nine inches.

Paducah, Ky., barely had enough snow to cover the ground.

Highways north of Sikeston were reported in fairly good condition but south they are filled with slush and slick in places.

Clear, cold weather was forecast for tonight in the Bootheel with a little warmer temperatures Friday. There was no more snow forecast.

Viet Cong Strikes Back

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) -- A Viet Cong battalion slashed across a minefield early today and attacked elements of the U.S. 1st Infantry Division in one of the heaviest Communist assaults against the GIs.

The Americans beat off the attackers with a barrage of mortar and artillery fire, killing at least 89 Reds and wounding 11, according to reports from the scene. U.S. casualties overall were described as light but some small units took moderate losses.

The 3 1/2-hour battle took place near Tan Binh in the jungles 30 miles north of Saigon, where thousands of infantrymen on Operation Mastiff have been looking for several hard-core Viet Cong regiments since Monday.

A U.S. Marine company battled another Viet Cong battalion equipped with automatic weapons outside Ky My, a village near Da Nang, 380 miles northeast of Saigon. With armed helicopters backing them up, the Marines killed 25 Communists and put the rest to flight, a Marine spokesman said.

Down the coast a Marine patrol spotted 20 Viet Cong near Chu Lai and called in howitzers to fire on them. The Marines spotted only six fleeing the scene and presumed the rest were either killed or wounded.

Despite heavy rain, American jets hit North Viet Nam again Wednesday, using radar in some cases to get on target, spokesmen reported. Navy carrier planes flew six missions at altitudes of 500 to 2,000 feet.

KANSAS CITY AP -- Artist Thomas Hart Benton, 76, was described as "slightly improved" today at Menorah Medical Center where he was taken last week after a heart attack.

HATTIESBURG, Miss.--The Hattiesburg recreation department playgrounds announced that a prize in a pet show would be awarded for the pet with the most spots. One had arrived with his extremely freckled-faced little brother on a leash. The supervisors disqualified him.

It could be increased by charging fees for out-patient care, but not substantially, he said.

ONE NATION UNDER GOD

Recently, in Viet Nam, an American General and others in the medical corps risked their lives while performing an operation to remove a live grenade from the back of a Viet Nameese farmer. The grenade was removed without exploding, though it could have been otherwise at the loss of many lives. The first question the saved man uttered was why.

"Why did they do this for a lowly Viet Nameese farmer like me?" he asked. If the General and the others similarly queried themselves, it is certain that each came to the same answer: BROTHERHOOD.

Brotherhood seems easy to accept on a private, man-to-man basis. We seem able to fight private prejudices on an individual-to-individual level. Why then does hate persist among groups of people simply because of differences of race or creed or ethnic background?

Lack of understanding and lack of education certainly are two major causes. This Brotherhood Week the National Conference of Christians and Jews calls on all Americans to join them in their nationwide educational program to combat group prejudice and to make a living reality of our pledge of allegiance to "one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

The Colonel said: "Little girls like dolls and little boys like soldiers -- when they grow up the situation is reversed."

PROHIBITION AND THE SOUTH

The last stand of the temperance movement is, fittingly enough, in America's southland where the Bible Belt tradition of abstinence lingers on. Dry forces in several of the states remain politically potent and, as a result, it takes a bit of doing to buy a drink in many southern countries. A bit, not much more.

In an election year, some southern politicians have been especially eager to protect their constituents from the ravages of liquor. The Georgia Senate, in fact, recently passed a bill to prohibit all liquor, beer and wine advertising in the state. The legislation sailed through without much debate, apparently because everyone present knew it would be buried in a "friendly" committee of the Georgia House. Or, consider the goings on in Mississippi which, of today's 50 states, is the only one technically dry from border to border. It is not frivolous rumor that drinkin' likker is available round the clock in the Magnolia State. A hefty "black market" tax on the illegal sale of spirits there has been duly collected from bootleggers for years. A pucky deputy sheriff upset nearly everyone when he staged a raid not long ago on the Junior League Carnival Ball in Jackson, and carted off every bottle of liquor.

Revelers who saw the deputies hauling the cases assumed, naturally enough, that the law enforcement officials were carrying the booze in--not out. One of the guests at the ball was Mississippi Gov. Paul Jones who earlier the same week had dared to call on the legislature to either legalize and regulate liquor in the state or dry it up "like the Sahara Desert." Some saw the raid as an object lesson to the Governor: Mississippi likes to drink wet, and vote dry.

Representative Cederberg of Michigan says: "The theme now seems to be: Ask what your country can do for you--not what you can do for your country. The federal government of course has responsibilities to its citizens and we are all aware that many of our citizens, through no fault of their own, need assistance. This assistance should be and will be provided, but it must be done in a manner that will not in any way lessen an individual's personal initiative and make him forever dependent upon his government."

The Senate Foreign Relations committee hearings on the war in Viet Nam have been largely unproductive.

Thanks to the expert testimony of Gen. Maxwell Taylor and Secretary of State Dean Rusk the war aims have been spelled out more clearly than at any time in the past. What these men have told the Senators largely is an accumulation of information from the past but both their listeners in Washington, D.C., and across the nation need an occasional review because the war in Viet Nam is not a popular or well understood one.

While Sen. William Fulbright of Arkansas had the right to call the hearing it has done nothing to enhance his reputation as a foreign affairs expert.

Part of the basic difficulty of the war stems from the fact that the Senate never has had the opportunity to declare war on the Viet Cong so the issues never have been debated fully in the Senate. It is true, as Secretary of State Rusk says, that the Senate has obligated itself by past commitments but what started out as a limited conflict has grown into a full blown war, probably as much to the delight of the Communists as it has been to the consternation of many Americans and many of this country's allies. The question, however, which remains isn't so much how it started but what the prospects are for the final result.

Of course, the Senate hearings have given many individual Senators the opportunity to propagate their views across the nation and the chance to be seen and heard.

This will prove to be a disadvantage to many of them but politics encourages them to try. Perhaps it's better to try and fail than never to have tried at all to paraphrase an old expression often applied to romance.

Many heavy loads have been removed from the chests of Senators, who can now go back to their desks and vote huge and necessary appropriations to wage the war in Viet Nam. Maybe the nation is in a better position now to wage the war with a more unified spirit. At least that should be the hope of all Americans as they tackle the difficult problems that the future may bring.

The aims of the war and the prospect for success are now better understood.

"Rick" Leslie says: "A careful driver is a guy in a car that hasn't been insured yet."

Occasionally a friend will tell us when discussing vacation plans:

"Don't go there! It is too touristy."

If they are talking about the Wisconsin Dells, we couldn't agree more.

The spectacular bluffs, the black water--stained from its course through tamarack swamps, have their appeal but the environment has been spoiled to a large extent by commercialism--cheap souvenir stands, eating places and other flimsily built structures. Everywhere the tourist encounters the outstretched hand--offering not help but a few more coins. Dirt and empty candy bar wrappers abound.

By contrast Hannibal offers an authentic Mark Twain atmosphere with a minimum of commercialism, cheap or otherwise.

What happened to the Wisconsin Dells should not be allowed to occur to any tourist attraction because it is a form of blight.

But it underscores the importance of Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson's campaign to beautify America.

If Americans don't accept the challenge spoilers bent on making a fast buck will ruin the nation's landscape.

But "touristy" often is desirable.

When people travel they like to be catered to by people who know their business.

What could be worse than to visit an area in which the people were indifferent to visitors and insisted on going about their business and paying them no heed?

This cold shoulder isn't what any tourist wants. If he is a tourist, he has a right to expect "touristy" treatment.

That means he appreciates thoughtful, courteous and considerate treatment. If he doesn't get it in an attractive package he won't come back.

Let's not bring dishonor to the term or try to minimize its importance.

A cold shoulder is much worse.

Uniformed policemen appeared for the first time on the streets of London on September 19, 1829. Local wags dubbed them "bobbies" after British statesman, Sir Robert Peel, who introduced the bill into Parliament providing for the force.

Hal Boyle

NEW YORK AP -- It is too late in the winter season to sing Christmas carols and too early to have backyard cookouts.

About all that leaves on the social calendar is cocktail parties, America's chief contribution to the decline and fall of civilization.

There are some people who think it is easy to throw a successful cocktail party. Actually, however, there is quite a knack to it. Whether your party is dud or a memorable masterpiece depends on your taste and judgement.

Some hostesses merely call in a caterer and phone up a dozen close friends they wish to entertain. The caterer's man sedately serves the drinks and passes the food.

The guests sedately sip and nibble and discuss the weather and modern art and the latest book none of them have really read. By a quarter to eight at the latest they have left, yawning. On the way home they make derogatory remarks about the host and hostess, and put them both down as prize dullards.

This is exactly the wrong way to throw a cocktail party. People don't go to such affairs to be bored. They go to shuck off their inhibitions and have a good time. The more like an orgy you can make it the better they'll like it.

In planning a successful party the first step is to take out big insurance policy. It should cover medical expenses of injured guests, punitive suits by annoyed neighbors, and damage to furniture.

Now it is time to make out the guest list. No matter how small your home or apartment, invite no fewer than 50. Sixty or 70 is even better. Make the party look as much like a crowded football game as possible.

Then, if more than a third of them want to sit down at any one time, they'll have to sit in each other's laps, which helps create a cozy, chummy atmosphere.

Whom to invite? It is wiser to invite people who don't know each other. That way in case they can't remember later what they said or did they will at least know they didn't insult a friend. And naturally they won't bother to apologize to someone who is a total stranger.

Now about food. Many hostesses like to prepare steamy casserole dishes. This is a mistake. Plates of food usually are found days later hidden under sofas or poured uneaten into the laundry hamper.

Anyone who expects a good meal doesn't go to a cocktail party. He stays home. All that is necessary is to fix up a few trays of canapes. They can be made of anything handy -- such as small bits of wallboard covered with old cheese or library paste and chopped up eggs. The main thing is to leave the trays standing for a couple of hours in the rain to make them properly soggy.

As to the liquor, don't bother to learn your guests' preference. Just buy an assortment of cheap bottles and put them on the kitchen drainboard along with some buckets of ice cubes.

After two rounds most guests don't know what they are drinking or care what it tastes like.

The best time to launch a cocktail party is at 6 o'clock Friday evening. After getting the canapes circulating, the smart host and hostess will tip toe out of the place, leaving an off-duty fireman on guard to put out any small blazes started by careless smokers. It also might be helpful to scatter around a few first aid kits.

After spending two evenings in a hotel, you and your husband can probably return safely home. After having a good cry -- and throwing out the last guest sleeping under the living room rug -- you can start cleaning up the wreckage.

But all next week you'll be getting phone calls from guests telling you what a perfectly delightful cocktail party you threw. Then you and your husband will be invited to their parties, and you'll feel completely to wreck their homes.

WASHINGTON -- Fred Friendly's resignation as head of CBS news over his superiors' refusal to broadcast all of the Senate testimony on Viet Nam may touch off a congressional probe of TV network profits and network domination of other lines of business.

Friendly resigned when new CBS president Jack Schneider and other dollar-dedicated CBS executives decided to show a rerun of "I Love Lucy" featuring Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz instead of the Senate testimony of ex-Ambassador George Kennan on the vital problem facing the United States in Southeast Asia.

The network saved $170,000. The public missed getting the advice of an expert on one of the most important developments in the world which is already costing American lives and will cost a lot more.

This has aroused some members of the House Interstate Commerce committee to recall what Madison Avenue seems to have forgotten, namely, that the TV-radio airwaves belong to the people and are only leased to the networks on a temporary basis.

When Rep. Oren Harris of Arkansas, himself a TV station stockholder, was chairman of the House Interstate Commerce committee, he went down the line for the networks. When the late Sam Rayburn put through a probe of the regulatory agencies, Harris fired the counsel, Dr. Bernard Schwartz, when he wanted to probe too deeply. Instead Harris conducted a scratch-the-surface investigation of disc jockey payola and quiz programs which made headlines but reformed little.

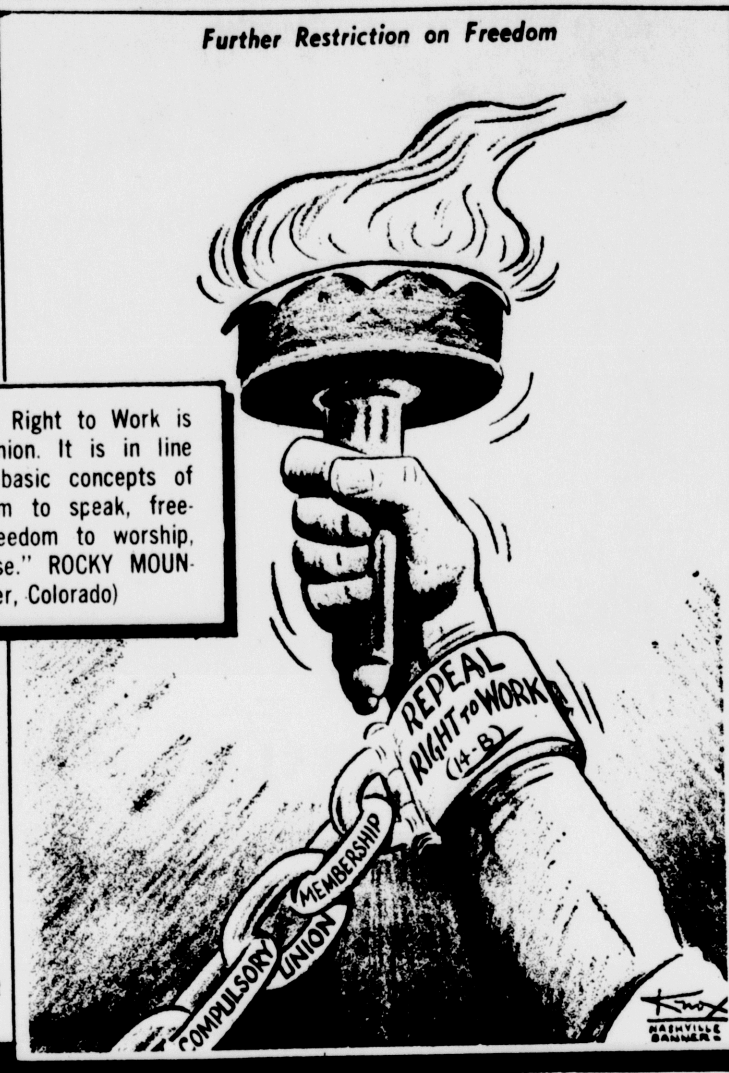

New committee chairman Harley Staggers, D-W. Va., however, is not easily pushed around. He also has some tough congressmen on his committee -- Torbert Macdonald, Mass., John Moss, Calif., John Dingell, Mich., Democrats; with William Springer, Ill., Anchor Nelsen, Minn., Republicans; who don't take dictation from Madison Avenue.

Further Restriction on Freedom

It proves that many of us have been so preoccupied with things like world strife, rising prices, moon shots, coin shortages, population explosion, hemlines, the number of shaves from one blade, Lucie Johnson's romance, whether a gentleman should offer a lady a cigar -- to list only a few -- that we have failed to do our homework on peanut butter. The result is that we are blindly assuming the reason peanut butter doesn't stick to the roof of the mouth as much as it used to is because it's been improved by science.

Not so, we are told. The real reason, it seems, is -- steady now -- there aren't as many peanuts in peanut butter as there used to be!

How about THAT?

And if it shakes you, brace yourself for further shock.

We may not even be eating real peanut butter these days. We maybe eating peanut spread, WHAT'S THE DIFFERENCE? Well, the Federation of Consumers' says you can't rightly call peanut butter peanut butter unless it has 95 per cent peanuts in it. And, says the federation, the peanut butter industry -- or at least some of it -- is cutting down on the peanuts in peanut butter to make it spread easier.

The Food and Drug Administration has issued an order that peanut butter has to have at least 90 per cent peanuts or it isn't the real thing. And some peanuts butter, says FDA, has as little as 78 per cent.

So there's the peanut butter problem in a nutshell. Actually, there is no need to panic. We Americans have handled things as sticky as this before, and we can handle this -- IF we keep calm and chew on it together.

If we don't, it could drive us nuts. At least 90 per cent nuts.

One man to another: "It took a lot of willpower, but I've finally given up trying to give up smoking."

CITES EXCISES AS LESSER

BAR TO INVESTING The Federal tax system could be altered so as to stimulate investment and encourage growth without risk of greater instability, according to Dr. C. Lowell Harriss, Economic Consultant to Tax Foundation, Inc.

Testifying last month before a Congressional committee considering possible Federal excise tax revisions, Dr. Harriss, who is also Columbia University Professor of Economics, suggested that the alterations might include cutting the rates of the corporation income tax, and the higher personal income tax rates.

Concentrating his testimony on "Direct and Indirect Taxes as Related to Stability, Investment, and Growth," Professor Harriss, in the investment section concluded that, on balance, excise taxation seemed to him more favorable to investment than "does income taxation as we know it."

Of the "stability" area, Dr. Harriss concluded that income taxation, "as we know it," is more effective as an "automatic stabilizer" than general or selective excises. He pointed out that when much of corporation income is taxed at about 50 per cent, "revenue fluctuates substantially," and in a way that contributes to the economy's stability. He said the same is true of the personal income tax "for it fluctuates relatively more than do the mitted to go into the steamship business. The aircraft manufacturers are barred by law from owning more than a small percentage of the airline business. However, there are no restrictions on the TV networks.

Thus CBS has purchased the New York Yankees, "My Fair Lady," and Allyn and Paxon Publishing. General Electric and Time-Life, both big TV station owners, have formed a partnership to enter the educational field. Storer Broadcasting, with 12 radio and TV stations, has been making so much money that it has purchased 87 per cent of Northeast Airlines.

Metromedia has purchased Diplomat magazine, Ice Capades and Foster and Kleiser Outdoor Advertising.

The influence of Madison Avenue has even crept into educational television. The National Educational Television network, noncommercial and therefore supposed to be immune from advertiser pressure, recently held up an expose of prescription drugs because of pressure from Smith, Kline and French laboratories, manufacturers of Contac.

Contac's manufacturers protested the remarks, filmed in advance, of Yale Professor William M. O'Brien, medical adviser to the Consumers Union, who discussed the merits of medicines by name.

The National Educational Television network, which has had a tough time staying alive without advertising, has received contributions from various drug companies. In January Bristol-Myers made a contribution of $250,000 to Channel 13, the NET Outlet in New York, to produce programs of the fine arts. Earlier Smith, Kline and French, manufacturers of Contac, had contributed to NET for a 90-minute drama on mental health.

These are some of the factors influencing television which the House Interstate Commerce committee may investigate.

On growth, Dr. Harriss concluded: "High income and estate tax rates give irresistible incentives to direct effort, skill, imagination, and talent toward reducing tax rather than toward... constructive activities."

A cut in the really high tax rates, he said, would help society get greater benefit from its none-too-plentiful supply of skill. The revenue effect, he said, would not be large enough to require much of an increase in the rate of any broad-based tax, including lower income tax brackets.

"Excise taxes," said Dr. Harriss, "would seem to me less likely to exert the same forces for 'misdirecting' effort."

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Rockefeller Ties Up With Powerful Labor Chiefs Outmaneuvers Robert Kennedy's Strategy.

New York: -- Nelson A. Rockefeller is going for broke. That gives him quite a distance.

And many powerful vote-getting labor leaders are his fellow travelers on an express train of history, which started rolling on this city's transit lines just a few hours after the end of the strangling subway strike.

There positively is no doubt that Gov. Rockefeller hopes the train will take him right on to Washington. Some of the labor leaders may get off before Union depot if the Democratic presidential nominee is Lyndon Johnson or Hubert Humphrey. But they'll stay right on board with "Rocky" if the opposition is Sen. Robert Kennedy.

To insiders this was most obvious at the Irish-bellad-laden memorial ceremonies to Mike Quill in labor's traditional meeting grounds, the cavernous Manhattan Center last Sunday (Feb. 20). Ambassador Arthur Goldberg, leaving his glass towers, was cheered not so much for his words as for his symbolic representation of President Johnson.

Praise of Gov. Rockefeller by the incisive and inscrutable Harry Van Arsdale, leader of one million Central Labor Council members, was heavily applauded. No one mentioned Bob Kennedy.

But it was the obvious and sudden warmth towards "Rocky" on the part of thousands of unionists -- and their influential leaders -- which surprised some visitors at the memorial services.

Only those who know the inside story realized what was happening. And here is the behind-the-scenes maneuvering which may be the making of a Republican presidential candidate.

Over the weekend of Feb. 11 it appeared there might be another crippling transit strike--wildcat, this time.

The State Supreme Court had ruled that the transit strikers had violated the civil service anti-strike law and therefore were not entitled to their money raises.

On Friday morning union leaders and lawyers met with Mayor Lindsay, who also hopes to catch that express train to the White House. Another crippling stoppage of the city's transit facilities would certainly have wrecked this timetable.

The Mayor indicated that the only way out was for Gov. Rockefeller to do something with the law force its repeal retroactively. But then the lawyers, including Lindsay's noted city corporation counsel, J. Lee Rankin, of Warren Commission fame, met Friday afternoon. They just could not work out any legal appeals which would not take months -- and which could get them a decision sufficiently favorable to put the

WORLD'S FAIR-INSTALLMENT TWO

Walter Winchell's column implied Hunt was being thrown out of the Fair because of choosing a patriotic theme. Mr. Moses was giving a reception for me at his Gracie Square home in Manhattan. Telegrams were hurriedly sent to the vast number of invited guests postponing the reception "indefinitely." Moses could not command the funds to repay my advance rentals, and I stayed in New York until an emergency meeting of the Executive Committee raised the funds to repay the rentals.

We had purchased some rides outright, and contracted with families who build rides to construct others, plans for which were all approved as provided by Fair officials. We lost several hundred thousand dollars and our time through the cancellation. We did not join the vast numbers who were suing the Fair for damages.

The Fair's disappointing attendance might have been 10% greater if the Fair had had the benefit of H. L. H. Products daily advertising its Fun and Food Exhibit over the hundreds of radio stations seven days a week; and our exhibit as planned would have provided entertainment for the visitors awaiting access to the other very large exhibits in the Industrial Area, and the fun attraction would have held visitors in the Industrial Area several additional hours per night.

Poor as the attendance at the Fair developed, we would have made a fair return on the investment from admissions to the rides and the dispensing of vast quantities of our H. L. H. food products items which would have better acquainted the American public with our offerings. Our concession's historical theme would have promoted national pride and patriotism, commodities sadly needed today. H.L.H.

Transit Authority's raises into the pay envelopes.

So they all decided to meet again with Mayor Lindsay at 2:30 p.m. the following Monday. Then they put the heat on Gov. Rockefeller -- unbeknown to the Mayor. Mr. Rockefeller was having none of it.

He did not think much of a retroactive law which would say, in effect, the Transport Workers Union people had not really broken the Condon-Wadlin Act during the stoppage. This would have made the billion-dollar walkout an unstrike, an action which would hardly cheer a still-irritated public. There is a gubernatorial reelection campaign upcoming.

So the labor leaders contacted AFL-CIO President George Meany, meeting with his high council in Florida. Mr. Meany telephoned Mr. Rockefeller. Then the ball was tossed to Mr. Van Arsdale, an ardent Democrat until the other month.

But Mr. Van Arsdale has become quite attached to Mr. Rockefeller. He had invited "Rocky" to speak to his big union rally, which was held just a few hours after his strike settlement Last Jan. 13. This is a rare privilege reserved mostly for Democrats. Mr. Rockefeller did not come, but only because of the city's hangover chaos.

So, when Mr. Meany and Mr. Van Arsdale put it squarely to the Governor to change his mind and push through a law, Mr. Rockefeller did a 180-degree turn. That was on Saturday. On Sunday he announced he would do what the union leaders asked. Mr. Lindsay got the news on the air.

On Monday one of his aides called the union people and asked what the deuce was the need for a meeting. The law passed quickly. Mr. Rockefeller had settled everything for his new-found labor allies.

But there is more, much more. The Governor will also approve a raise in the state minimum wage from $1.25 an hour to $1.50 -- a bill which he vetoed last year.

Thus there is no doubt that he will have much of labor's backing for the first time. In the 1962 gubernatorial campaign, Transport Workers Union President Matthew Guinan helped to lead labor's committee for Bob Kennedy's candidate, Robert Morgenthau. Now Mr. Guinan will back Mr. Rockefeller. So will Mr. Van Arsdale.

So will the Liberal Party guided by labor leaders Dave Dubinsky and Alex Rose. With such support Gov. Rockefeller could win by half-a-million votes -- enough to crack the Kennedy Democratic machine, enough to give "Rocky" a fighting chance for the presidency, which he wants indeed.

That's why he's going for broke. But there will be a few labor dollars this time to help.

ONE NATION UNDER GOD

Recently, in Viet Nam, an American General and others in the medical corps risked their lives while performing an operation to remove a live grenade from the back of a Viet Namease farmer. The grenade was removed without exploding, though it could have been otherwise at the loss of many lives. The first question the saved man uttered was why.

"Why did they do this for a lowly Viet Namease farmer like me?" he asked. If the General and the others similarly queried themselves, it is certain that each came to the same answer: BROTHERHOOD.

Brotherhood seems easy to acception a private, man-to-man basis. We seem able to fight private prejudices on an individual-to-individual level. Why then does hate persist among groups of people simply because of differences of race or creed or ethnic background?

Lack of understanding and lack of education certainly are two major causes. This Brotherhood Week the National Conference of Christians and Jews calls on all Americans to join them in their nationwide educational program to combat group prejudice and to make a living reality of our pledge of allegiance of "one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

The Colonel said: "Little girls like dolls and little boys like soldiers -- when they grow up the situation is reversed.

PROHIBITION AND THE SOUTH

The last stand of the temperance movement is, fittingly enough, in America's southland where the Bible Belt tradition of abstinence lingers on. Dry forces in several of the states remain politically potent and, as a result, it takes a bit of doing to buy a drink in many southern countries. A bit, not much more.

In an election year, some southern politicians have been especially eager to protect their constituents from the ravages of liquor. The Georgia Senate, in fact, recently passed a bill to prohibit all liquor, beer and wine advertising in the state. The legislation sailed through without much debate, apparently because everyone present knew it would be buried in a "friendly" committee of the Georgia House. Or, consider the goings on in Mississippi which, of today's 50 states, is the only one technically dry from border to border. It is not frivolous rumor that drinkin' likker is available round the clock in the Magnolia State. A hefty "black market" tax on the illegal sale of spirits there has been duly collected from bootleggers for years. A puckish deputy sheriff upset nearly everyone when he staged a raid not long ago on the Junior League Carnival Ball in Jackson, and carted off every bottle of liquor.

Revelers who saw the deputies hauling the cases assumed, naturally enough, that the law enforcement officials were carrying the booze in--not out. One of the guests at the ball was Mississippi Gov. Paul Jones who earlier the same week had dared to call on the legislature to either legalize and regulate liquor in the state or dry it up "like the Sahara Desert." Some saw the raid as an object lesson to the Governor: Mississippi likes to drink wet, and vote dry.

Representative Cederberg of Michigan says: "The theme now seems to be: Ask what your country can do for you--not what you can do for your country. The federal government of course has responsibilities to its citizens and we are all aware that many of our citizens, through no fault of their own, need assistance. This assistance should be and will be provided, but it must be done in a manner that will not in any way lessen an individual's personal initiative and make him forever dependent upon his government."

The Senate Foreign Relations committee hearings on the war in Viet Nam have been largely unproductive.

Thanks to the expert testimony of Gen. Maxwell Taylor and Secretary of State Dean Rusk the war aims have been spelled out more clearly than at any time in the past. What these men have told the Senators largely is an accumulation of information from the past but both their listeners in Washington, D.C., and across the nation need an occasional review because the war in Viet Nam is not a popular or well understood one.

While Sen. William Fulbright of Arkansas had the right to call the hearing it has done nothing to enhance his reputation as a foreign affairs expert.

Part of the basic difficulty of the war stems from the fact that the Senate never has had the opportunity to declare war on the Viet Cong so the issues never have been debated fully in the Senate. It is true, as Secretary of State Rusk says, that the Senate has obligated itself by past commitments but what started out as a limited conflict has grown into a full blown war, probably as much to the delight of the Communists as it has been to the consternation of many Americans and many of this country's allies. The question, however, which remains isn't so much how it started but what the prospects are for the final result.

Of course, the Senate hearings have given many individual Senators the opportunity to propagate their views across the nation and the chance to be seen and heard.

This will prove to be a disadvantage to many of them but politics encourages them to try. Perhaps it's better to try and fail than never to have tried at all to paraphrase an old expression often applied to romance.

Many heavy loads have been removed from the chests of Senators, who can now go back to their desks and vote huge and necessary appropriations to wage the war in Viet Nam. Maybe the nation is in a better position now to wage the war with a more unified spirit.

At least that should be the hope of all Americans as they tackle the difficult problems that the future may bring.

The aims of the war and the prospect for success are now better understood.

Occasionally a friend will tell us when discussing vacation plans:

"Don't go there! It is too touristy." If they are talking about the Wisconsin Dells, we couldn't agree more.

The spectacular bluffs, the black water--stained from its course through tamarack swamps, have their appeal but the environment has been spoiled to a large extent by commercialism--cheap souvenir stands, eating places and other flimsily built structures. Everywhere the tourist encounters the outstretched hand--offering not help but a few more coins. Dirt and empty candy bar wrappers abound.

By contrast Hannibal offers an authentic Mark Twain atmosphere with a minimum of commercialism, cheap or otherwise.

What happened to the Wisconsin Dells should not be allowed to occur to any tourist attraction because it is a form of blight.

But it underscores the importance of Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson's campaign to beautify America.

If Americans don't accept the challenge spoilers bent on making a fast buck will ruin the nation's landscape.

When people travel they like to be catered to by people who know their business.

What could be worse than to visit an area in which the people were indifferent to visitors and insisted on going about their business and paying them no heed?

This cold shoulder isn't what any tourist wants. If he is a tourist, he has a right to expect "touristy" treatment.

That means he appreciates thoughtful, courteous and considerate treatment. If he doesn't get it in an attractive package he won't come back.

Let's not bring dishonor to the term or try to minimize its importance.

A cold shoulder is much worse.

NEW YORK AP -- It is too late in the winter season to sing Christmas carols and too early to have backyard cookouts.

About all that leaves on the social calendar is cocktail parties, America's chief contribution to the decline and fall of civilization.

There are some people who think it is easy to throw a successful cocktail party. Actually, however, there is quite a knack to it. Whether your party is dud or a memorable masterpiece depends on your taste and judgement.

Some hostesses merely call in a caterer and phone up a dozen close friends they wish to entertain. The caterer's manservant serves the drinks and passes the food.

The guests sedately sip and nibble and discuss the weather and modern art and the latest book none of them have really read. By a quarter to eight at the latest they have left, yawning. On the way home they make derogatory remarks about the host and hostess, and put them both down as prize dullards.

This is exactly the wrong way to throw a cocktail party. People don't go to such affairs to be bored. They go to shuck off their inhibitions and have a good time. The more like an orgy you can make it the better they'll like it.

In planning a successful party the first step is to take out a big insurance policy. It should cover medical expenses of injured guests, punitive suits by annoyed neighbors, and damage to furniture.

Now it is time to make out the guest list. No matter how small your home or apartment, invite no fewer than 50. Sixty or 70 is even better. Make the party look as much like a crowded football game as possible.

Then, if more than a third of them want to sit down at any one time, they'll have to sit in each other's laps, which helps create a cozy, chummy atmosphere.

Whom to invite? It is wiser to invite people who don't know each other. That way in case they can't remember later what they said or did they will at least know they didn't insult a friend. And naturally they won't bother to apologize to someone who is a total stranger.

Now about food. Many hostesses like to prepare steamy casserole dishes. This is a mistake. Plates of it usually are found days later hidden under sofas or poured uneaten into the laundry hamper.

Anyone who expects a good meal doesn't go to a cocktail party. He stays home. All that is necessary is to fix up a few trays of canapes. They can be made of anything handy -- such as small bits of wallboard covered with old cheese or library paste and chopped up eggs. The main thing is to leave the trays standing for a couple of hours in the rain to make them properly soggy.

As to the liquor, don't bother to learn your guests' preference. Just buy an assortment of cheap bottles and put them on the kitchen drainboard along with some buckets of ice cubes.

After two rounds most guests don't know what they are drinking or care what it tastes like. The best time to launch a cocktail party is at 6 o'clock Friday evening. After getting the canapes circulating, the smart host and hostess will take a host out of the place, leaving an off-duty fireman on guard to put out any small blazes started by careless smokers. It also might be helpful to scatter around a few first aid kits.

After spending two evenings in a hotel, you and your husband can probably return safely home. After having a good cry -- and throwing out the last guest sleeping under the living room rug -- you can start cleaning up the wreckage.

But all next week you'll be getting phone calls from guests telling you what a perfectly delightful cocktail party you threw. Then you and your husband will be invited to their parties, and you'll feel completely to wreck their homes.

WASHINGTON -- Fred Friendly's resignation as head of CBS news over his superiors' refusal to broadcast all of the Senate testimony on Viet Nam may touch off a congressional probe of TV network profits and network domination of other lines of business.

Friendly resigned when new CBS president Jack Schneider and other dollar-dedicated CBS executives decided to show a rerun of "I Love Lucy" featuring Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz instead of the Senate testimony of ex-Ambassador George Kennan on the vital problem facing the United States in Southeast Asia.

The network saved $170,000. The public missed getting the advice of an expert on one of the most important developments in the world which is already costing American lives and will cost a lot more.

This has aroused some members of the House Interstate Commerce committee to recall what Madison Avenue seems to have forgotten, namely, that the TV-radio airwaves belong to the people and are only leased to the networks on a temporary basis.

When Rep. Oren Harris of Arkansas, himself a TV station stockholder, was chairman of the House Interstate Commerce committee, he went down the line for the networks. When the late Sam Rayburn put through a probe of the regulatory agencies, Harris fired the counsel, Dr. Bernard Schwartz, when he wanted to probe too deeply. Instead Harris conducted a scratch-the-surface investigation of disc jockey payola and quiz programs which made headlines but reformed little.

New committee chairman Harley Staggers, D-W.Va., however, is not easily pushed around. He also has some tough congressmen on his committee -- Torbert Macdonald, Mass., John Moss, Calif., John Dingell, Mich., Democrats; with William Springer, Ill., Ancher Nelsen, Minn., Republicans; who don't take dictation from Madison Avenue.

It proves that many of us have been so preoccupied with things like world strife, rising prices, moon shots, coin shortages, population explosion, hemlines, the number of shaves from one blade, Luc Johnson's romance, whether a gentleman should offer a lady a cigar -- to list only a few -- that we have failed to do our homework on peanut butter.

The result is that we are blindly assuming the reason peanut butter doesn't stick to the roof of the mouth as much as it used to is because it's been improved by science.

Not so, we are told. The real reason, it seems, is -- steady now -- there aren't as many peanuts in peanut butter as there used to be!

How about THAT? And if it shakes you, brace yourself for further shock.

We may not even be eating real peanut butter these days. We may be eating peanut spread. WHAT'S THE DIFFERENCE? Well, the Federation of Consumers says you can't rightly call peanut butter peanut butter unless it has 95 per cent peanuts in it. And, says the federation, the peanut butter industry -- or at least some of it -- is cutting down on the peanuts in peanut butter to make it spread easier.

The Food and Drug Administration has issued an order that peanut butter has to have at least 90 per cent peanuts or it isn't the real thing. And some peanuts butter, says FDA, has as little as 78 per cent.

So there's the peanut butter problem in a nutshell. Actually, there is no need to panic. We Americans have handled things as sticky as this before, and we can handle this -- IF we keep calm and chew on it together.

Most people don't realize that TV advertising has soared to the point where NBC had billings of around half a billion dollars last year. This gave NBC about 24 per cent of the huge business of its parent company, the Radio Corporation of America, one of the bigger defense contractors of the nation.

This is another aspect in which some congressmen are interested. How much is national policy influenced by defense contractor-owned television? TV is a medium which some educators consider almost as important as the public school, yet some of the most important TV stations in the country, plus one entire network -- NBC -- are in the hands not of school boards or universities but of big defense contractors.

Meanwhile the TV networks are making so much money that they don't know what to do with it. Variety magazine, Bible of the TV-radio trade, recently reported that the networks were going into such diverse fields as airline transportation and termite extermination.

"The networks are being pushed into diversification as the only way of placing their enormous profits back into business," Variety reported. "This is evolving a uniform breed of the TV-radio magnate, the broadcaster-industrialist."

The Justice Department has forced the motion picture companies to divest themselves of their theatres, so that the Hollywood producers cannot show their product in kept theatres. This divestiture has brought new competition and a vast improvement in motion pictures. The TV networks, however, require most of their filmed productions to be done under their direction, thus cutting themselves in on both the production profit and the profit from selling advertising time. Because of this ban on outside producers, fewer and fewer independents are able to exist today.

CITES EXCISES AS LESSER BAR TO INVESTING The Federal tax system could be altered so as to stimulate investment and encourage growth without risk of greater instability, according to Dr. C. Lowell Harriss, Economic Consultant to Tax Foundation, Inc.

Testifying last month before a Congressional committee considering possible Federal excise tax revisions, Dr. Harriss, who is also Columbia University Professor of Economics, suggested that the alterations might include cutting the rates of the corporation income tax, and the higher personal income tax rates.

Concentrating his testimony on "Direct and Indirect Taxes as Related to Stability, Investment, and Growth," Professor Harriss, in the investment section concluded that, on balance, excise taxation seemed to him more favorable to investment than "does income taxation as we know it."

Of the "stability" area, Dr. Harriss concluded that income taxation, "as we know it," is more effective as an "automatic stabilizer" than general or selective excises. He pointed out that when much of corporation income is taxed at around 50 per cent, "revenue fluctuates substantially," and in a way that contributes to the economy's stability. He said the same is true of the personal income tax "for it fluctuates relatively more than do the General Electric and Time-Life, both big TV station owners, have formed a partnership to enter the educational field. Storer Broadcasting, with 12 radio and TV stations, has been making so much money that it has purchased 87 per cent of North-east Airlines.

Metromedia has purchased Diplomat magazine, Ice Capades and Foster and Kleiser Outdoor Advertising.

The influence of Madison Avenue has even crept into educational television. The National Educational Television network, noncommercial and therefore supposed to be immune from advertiser pressure, recently held up an exposure of prescription drugs because of pressure from Smith, Kline and French laboratories, manufacturers of Contac.

Contact's manufacturers protested the remarks, filmed in advance, of Yale Professor William M. O'Brien, medical adviser to the Consumers Union, who discussed the merits of medicines by name.

The National Educational Television network, which has had a tough time staying alive without advertising, has received contributions from various drug companies. In January Bristol-Myers made a contribution of $250,000 to Channel 13, the NET Outlet in New York, to produce programs of the fine arts. Earlier Smith, Kline and French, manufacturers of Contac, had contributed to NET for a 90-minute drama on mental health.

These are some of the factors influencing television which the House Interstate Commerce committee may investigate.

So they all decided to meet again with Mayor Lindsay at 2:30 p.m. the following Monday. Then they put the heat on Gov. Rockefeller -- unknown to the Mayor. Mr. Rockefeller was having none of it.

He did not think much of a retroactive law which would say, in effect, the Transport Workers Union people had not really broken the Condon-Wadlin Act during the stoppage. This would have made the billion-dollar walkout an unstrike, an action which would hardly cheer a still-irritated public. There is a gubernatorial reelection campaign upcoming.

So the labor leaders contacted AFL-CIO President George Meany, meeting with his high council in Florida. Mr. Meany telephoned Mr. Rockefeller. Then the ball was tossed to Mr. Van Arsdale, an ardent Democrat until the other month.

But Mr. Van Arsdale has become quite attached to Mr. Rockefeller. He had invited "Rocky" to speak to his big union rally, which was held just a few hours after his strike settlement last Jan. 13. This is a rare privilege reserved mostly for Democrats. Mr. Rockefeller did not come, but only because of the city's hangover chaos.

So, when Mr. Meany and Mr. Van Arsdale put it squarely to the Governor to change his mind and push through a law, Mr. Rockefeller did a 180-degree turn. That was on Saturday.

On Sunday he announced he would do what the union leaders asked. Mr. Lindsay got the news on the air.

On Monday one of his aides called the union people and asked what the deuce was the need for a meeting. The law passed quickly. Mr. Rockefeller had settled everything for his new-found labor allies.

But there is more, much more. The Governor will also approve a raise in the state minimum wage from $1.25 an hour to $1.50 -- a bill which he vetoed last year.

Thus there is no doubt that he will have much of labor's backing for the first time. In the 1962 gubernatorial campaign, Transport Workers Union President Matthew Guinan helped to lead labor's committee for Bob Kennedy's candidate, Robert Morgenthau. Now Mr. Guinan will back Mr. Rockefeller. So will Mr. Van Arsdale.

So will the Liberal Party guided by labor leaders Dave Dubinsky and Alex Rose. With such support Gov. Rockefeller could win by half-a-million votes -- enough to crack the Kennedy Democratic machine, enough to give "Rocky" a fighting chance for the Republican nomination for the presidency, which he wants indeed.

That's why he's going for broke. But there will be a few labor dollars this time to help.

Eighteen hundred delegates representing over 18,000 members will attend the meeting. Official delegates from the Kelly Chapter are Brenda Lawrence, Karen Showmaker, and Ann Scherer. Others in the delegation are Pam Lambert who will sing in the state chorus, and Patti Grojean who is an applicant for the F.H.A. scholarship. The theme of the meeting is "F.H.A. -- Our Golden Heritage". Program highlights include an address on "Morals and Manners Matter" by Helen Manley, Executive Director, social health association of St. Louis, a panel discussion on "Your Neighbors Near and Far", a performance by the 190 voice all-state chorus and installation of the 1966-67 state officers. ## Second Concert Of Season To Be Saturday

The second presentation of the Delta Community Concert Association will be at 8 p.m. Saturday at Charleston high school auditorium. Music ranging from the familiar strains of the quartet, "Bella figlia dell' amore" from Verdi's "Rigoletto" to the highly popular tunes from such recent Broadway shows as Rodgers and Hammerstein's "Carousel" and "The King and I", and Kurt Weill's "The Rise and Fall of the City of Mahagonny", will be presented by a select quartet of young singers. Taking the name from the fabulous "Golden Curtain", symbol of the epitome of operatic excellence in the Metropolitan Opera, Kurt Adler, conductor of the Met, has gathered this quartet of young talent. The group has the unique opportunity of according its audience a sense of the context from which the musical excerpts have been taken. This cannot be achieved by a solo artist. Although solo musical comedy songs and operatic arias are included in the program, the ensemble is able to exhibit the interplay and feeling which adds dimensions of story and character so important to any musical drama. Marie Albanese, soprano; Adele Baker, mezzo-soprano; Jerold Siena, tenor; and Theodore Lambros, baritone, are members of the group, each of whom has already distinguished himself in solo performances here and abroad.

World Day Of Prayer To Be Observed

The World Day of Prayer service, sponsored by the United Church Women, will be held at the Fellowship Baptist Church, 228 Missouri Ave., at 2 p.m. tomorrow. Women of many denominations will unite in a quiet hour of worship.

Basically, the same service is used by groups in 125 countries and areas of the world on the same day. The world theme is "You Are My Witnesses", and the local chairman is Mrs. Pam Blackman. The service has been prepared by women of the World Day of Prayer committee of Scotland and reflects the long traditions of the church in that country. The service each year comes from a different part of the world. This provides an extraordinary opportunity for Christian fellowship at a deep level and the experience of Christian unity in prayer.

The day had its beginning in 1887 when the president of the Women's Board of Home Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the United States called for a national day of prayer and offerings. In 1890 two Baptist women suggested an interdenominational day of prayer for foreign missions. The Council of Women for Home Missions and the Federation of Women's Boards of Foreign Missions picked up and carried forward these two days until 1919 when they were combined into one day. Soon after, the day began to be observed in other countries and spread rapidly around the world. When, in 1941, the two women's missions groups merged with the Federated Church Women to form the United Council of Church Women, the World Day of Prayer was assigned to this new body. It has continued since as the responsibility of United Church Women with the offerings being divided between the mission divisions of the National Council of Churches for interdenominational projects. All women of the community are invited to attend.

Eastern Star Has Meeting

Mrs. Lena Reed, worthy matron of Chapter No. 137, presided over the regular business meeting held on Thursday, Feb. 10, at the Masonic Temple. After the opening ceremony, Mrs. Pat Herring, past matron of Charleston Chapter No. 122, and Johnnie Gregg, past patron of Morley Chapter No. 420, were introduced and welcomed. Henry Holyfield was installed as sentinel to replace Ruel Gatewood. Installing officers were Arvil Nickell, installing patron, and Mrs. Charles Stearns, installing marshal. Several members were reported ill and in hospitals. The worthy matron stressed sending cards to denote concern for those confined. The chapter room was decorated with the Valentine motif. The officers presented a Valentine program honoring all the sideline members. Each member was introduced and asked to give the date of initiation into the order and any other pertinent dates or information relevant to membership in the order. The worthy matron thanked her decorating committee. At the close of the meeting, all were invited to the dining room for refreshments of pie and coffee served by Mrs. Lucille Crews, Mrs. Alma Mackley, Mrs. Edith Spidell, Mrs. Carolyn Goehri, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Wright, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fausett.

ENTERTAINING the Senior Girl Scout Conference held Saturday at the First Christian Church was Senior Girl Scout Troop No. 15. They presented an old fashioned melodrama, "Cast Up By The Sea," directed by Mrs. Charles Blanton III. Characters were, clockwise beginning in the lower left corner, Carolyn Clinton, pianist; Jean Shankle, Jane Ann Baker, Gene Nunnelee, Patty Anceil, Mary Jane Cope, Vinnie Hagan, Debbie Ingram, Kathy Matthews, cue girl; and Phyllis Jones. Scouts not shown but assisting were Penny Bryant, prompter; Gloria Powell, sound effects; June Latham, Carol Hackney and Pat Yates, prompters.

Sikeston Scouts Host Annual Senior Conference

Happiness seemed very much a part of the scene as 165 Girl Scouts from 14 towns in the Cotton Boll Council arrived Saturday at the First Christian Church, Sikeston, Missouri, for their annual Senior Conference. The chairman, Mrs. Gene Nunnelee, was ably assisted in the preparation by leaders, scouts, parents, and friends of scouting. Mrs. J. L. Howles, Troop No. 301, was in charge of registration and housing for visiting scouts. As the girls registered and were served hot chocolate, many were meeting as friends from Camp Latoka or one of the other gatherings so much a part of Girl Scouting. Sikeston Senior Troop No. 201 set the tone for the program to follow, by teaching the group two new happiness songs. Miss Ann Hicklin, Kennett, president of the Senior planning board, welcomed the scouts and introduced the guest speaker the Rev. Harold Nance of Flat River. Other events of the morning included a movie, "Open Your Eyes" and a sack lunch served by Mrs. Charles Watson's troop.

Mrs. Donald Burns, the former Kay Standley of Sikeston, opened the afternoon session with a few well chosen remarks on the subject, "Happiness Is Adventure." A panel discussion moderated by Roger Sherman, principal of Sikeston senior high school and assisted by Mrs. Handy Moore of Charleston, Mrs. Joe Fox, Paul Conley, and Eugene Dowling, of Sikeston, emphasized the future can be a happy one regardless of whether education is continued in private schools, state universities or a vocational school. Mrs. Ernest Harper of the Harper Travel Agency and Mrs.

Frank Merker were next on the program to take the scouts on a dream vacation from which they returned to reality with reluctance. Troop 15 presented a melodrama, "Cast Up By The Sea," which had an excellent cast and was directed by Mrs. Charles Blanton III. Troop No. 20, led by Mrs. Bill Marsh, provided dinner arrangements and table decorations which opened the evenings activities. This was followed by a program presented by the scouts selected by the Cotton Boll Council to attend the National Round-Up held in Idaho last summer. Included was a film of the round-up and comments by the girls of their personal experiences. Further entertainment was provided by The Travelers and troop No. 13, led by Mrs. Charles Watson in an amusing circus skit, directed by Mrs. Elmer Poague. The conference closed Sunday at noon following church services. Many of the scouts attended services at the host church, First Christian.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. AP -- A joke is a joke but losing is no laughing matter, even for the Mets, says Manager Wes Westrum.

"There'll be no fooling around," Westrum said Wednesday. "There'll be no more laughing when we lose, and there will be no more defeatism."

"Last year I heard a few remarks I didn't like," said Westrum, who succeeded Casey Stengel as manager of the National League's cellar team.

"If you have a defeatist attitude, you might as well pack your bag and go home."

KANSAS CITY AP -- Three young pitchers and an outfielder agreed to terms with the Kansas City Athletics, the club said today. They bring to 30 the number of A's signed for 1966.

The latest to return signed contracts are righthanders Don Buschhorn and Jim Nash, left-hander Dick Joyce and outfielder Larry Stahl.

The NCAA didn't waste any time filling its field for next month's postseason tournament that determines the national collegiate basketball champion.

Within a few hours after the starting time Wednesday to make selections, the NCAA had landed eight atlarge teams, including Texas Western, Chicago Loyola and Providence from The Associated Press Top Ten, to round out its 23-team field.

The NIT, the other major postseason tourney, announced the selection of five teams, headed by defending champion St. John's of New York, leaving nine still to be named for its 14-team field.

In addition to unbeaten Texas Western, 20-0, third in The AP poll, fourth-ranked Chicago Loyola, 20-2, and ninth-ranked Providence, 20-3; Oklahoma City, 21-4; Houston, 19-4; Dayton, 19-4; Syracuse, 18-4, and Colorado State U., 12-6, were tapped for the NCAA that opens March 7 and ends March 19.

Western Kentucky, 20-2, the Ohio Valley Conference champion, and the still to-be determined winners of 14 other conferences complete the NCAA field.

Virginia Tech, 19-4; Boston College, 17-4; De Paul, 17-5, and Penn State, 16-4, accepted bids to the NIT along with St. John's, 17-5. The NIT opens in New York March 10 and ends Saturday afternoon, March 19.

Chicago Loyola is pitted against Western Kentucky at Kent, Ohio, in one of the first-round games at four regional sites that kick off the NCAA on March 7. This game will follow one between Dayton and the winner of the Mid-American Conference, Toledo or Miami of Ohio.

Pairings for the other March 7 first-round games:

At Philadelphia: Southern Conference champion vs. Yankee Conference champion, Syracuse vs. Ivy League champion, with proviso that if Penn wins the Ivy, game will be shifted to Blacksburg, Va., March 8.

At Wichita, Kan. -- Texas Western vs. Oklahoma City, Houston vs. Colorado State U., at Blacksburg, Va. March 8 -- Providence vs. Middle Atlantic champion.

The winners of these games then move on to the regional finals March 11-12 at Raleigh, N.C.; Iowa City; Lubbock, Tex., and Los Angeles.

This is the set-up for March 11:

East at Raleigh -- Atlantic Coast Conference champion vs. winner of Providence-Middle Atlantic champion. Winner of Syracuse-Ivy League champion vs. winner of Southern Conference-Yankee Conference.

Midwest at Iowa City -- Southeastern Conference champion vs. Winner of Dayton-Mid-American Conference. Big Ten champion vs. winner of Western Kentucky-Chicago Loyola.

Midwest at Lubbock, Tex. -- Big Eight champion vs. Southwest Conference champion. Winner of Texas Western-Oklahoma City vs. Missouri Valley Conference champion.

Far West at Los Angeles -- winner of Houston-Colorado State U. vs. Pacific Athletic Conference champion. Western Athletic Conference champion vs. West Coast Athletic Conference champion.

The winners of these eight games play each other on Saturday, March 12, with the four survivors moving on to the national semifinals and championship game at College Park, Md., March 18-19.

Professional Baseball Round-Up

Bob Gibson took the low road, and Sandy Koufax will take the high road. And Gibson will get to Florida before him.

When Koufax finally gets there, though, he'll have more money.

Gibson, ace of the St. Louis Cardinals' pitching staff, finally agreed to a reported $50,000 contract Wednesday after threatening to hold out until he received a Koufax-like salary.

The big right-hander then left for Florida by car.

Koufax, on the other hand, very possibly will remain in Los Angeles with teammate Don Drysdale when the Dodgers plane takes off for Florida Saturday.

The pair reportedly seek a million dollars between them for a three-year period.

"If they are serious in their demands, and I have no reason to believe they aren't, I doubt that they will be on the plane to training camp at Vero Beach Saturday," Vice President Buzzie Bavasi said Wednesday.

When Koufax finally boards a plane for Florida, he'll undoubtedly have a contract calling for more than twice as much as Gibson, who said recently:

"I'm not going to push for anything foolish, but if Mr. Howsam is going to compare me with the better pitchers, like Koufax, I should be paid accordingly."

Howsam is Cardinals General Manager Bob Howsam, who supposedly once said there is no better pitcher than Gibson with the possible exception of Koufax.

Gibson's $50,000 salary represents a $7,000 raise for his performance in 1965 when he won 20 games and lost 12 while finishing third in the National League in strikeouts.

Koufax would not discuss money publicly -- there was a report that he seeks $600,000 for three years -- but he did say he and Drysdale are negotiating jointly.

"Don and I are an entry in our salary negotiations," Koufax told the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner. "We are asking for exactly the same figure over a three-year period. I want the same for Drysdale as for Koufax, and he wants the same for Koufax as for Drysdale."

day, March 12, with the four survivors moving on to the national semifinals and championship game at College Park, Md., March 18-19.

Cassius Clay Has Another Problem

MIAMI, Fla. AP -- If Cassius Clay doesn't pay the fees for his recent divorce, his former wife's attorney says he is ready to attach Clay's red Cadillac limousine and wardrobe.

"He won't need them if he's going to the Army anyway," the attorney, Lawrence Hoffman, said Wednesday.

Hoffman said the combined value would go a long way toward meeting the $22,500 fee the heavyweight champion was ordered to pay when he won a divorce from Sonji Clay.

Clay was to appear in court Wednesday to explain why he hasn't paid Hoffman's fee and the first $1,250 monthly alimony for Sonji. But the hearing was postponed to March 2 because one of Clay's attorneys was ill.

The champion, who did not appear for the hearing, sparred seven rounds in preparation for his title defense against Ernie Terrell March 29.

Clay said he would go to Chicago before the weekend to appear before the Illinois Boxing Commission and attend the Black Muslim convention.

"I've got to be there," Clay said.

KANSAS CITY AP -- Don Mossi, veteran left-handed relief pitcher, was placed on the voluntary retired list by the Kansas City Athletics.

Mossi, 35, appeared in 51 games for the A's in 1965 and had a 5-8 record with a 3.72 earned run average.

In his 12-year major league career, Mossi pitched for four American League clubs, breaking in with Cleveland in 1954 and playing with Detroit and Chicago.

Senath-Hornersville and Howardsville Advance

HAYTI -- Senath-Hornersville and Howardville eked past their opponents here last night in class M tournament action.

In the first game of the evening Senath - Hornersville handed Holcomb a 70-54 defeat. Holcomb, jumping out to a quick three point lead, was not able to hold the lead as Senath overtook it in the 19-11 first period advantage and was never threatened the rest of the game.

Senath was led to their victory by Pierce with 23 points and Tinnon with 15, with Lorusse chipping in 12.

Cash tallied 13 points for the Holcomb team as a total of 11 players got into the scoring column.

In the second game of the evening Howardville, after trailing the first half 40-39 came out the third quarter and tallied 28 points while holding South Pemiscot to only 18 and won 89-84.

South Pemiscot, playing perhaps their best game of the season, had the second seeded Howardville Hawks down but let up the third quarter and found themselves behind for the remainder of the game.

Howardville was led by Samelton and Anderson with 31 and 27 points respectively, with McFerren collecting an unbelievable 28 assist.

Coleman led South Pemiscot scorers with 33 points and was followed by Gillette and Barry with 19 points each.

Why did Colonel Taylor make his Bourbon in a castle?

In 1887, Col. Edmund H. Taylor, Jr., set out to find a special kind of water to make Bourbon with: limestone spring water.

This water has an incredibly tantalizing flavor that it acquires naturally by bubbling up through the limestone groundrock.

He found a spring near Frankfort, Kentucky. The water here ran forth so pure, so plentiful that he knew he would never want to make Bourbon anywhere else.

So, next to his spring, he built his distillery. And since he was there to stay, he built it to last. Built it in the form of a castle made of the same limestone that was to give his water its intriguing flavor.

Does the Colonel's castle make a better Bourbon?

Buy a bottle of Old Taylor...and taste for yourself.

Everything's old fashioned about Old Taylor except the people who drink it.

U.S. as Guardian of Globe Or in Limited Role-Which?

BY BRUCE BIOSSAT
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA)

The really deep rift over Vietnamese policy in the United States is not the one between the hawks and the doves. It is between those who see a large role and those who see a limited place for U.S. power in the world.

In the 20 years since World War II, the United States government has played the big role.

It has employed its power in Western Europe, Greece and Turkey, Cyprus, Lebanon, the Congo, Thailand, Laos, Viet Nam, Korea, Guatemala, the Dominican Republic.

Much of the time, in fact, the United States has been the world's one-country substitute for the United Nations in its role as pacifier of those who would subdue others.

AMERICA PLAYED THIS PART as global policeman because four presidents thought it had to. Leadership was thrust upon us. The U.N. was generally too weak.

Many liberal critics at home have either disapproved such uses or felt uncomfortable with them.

It is some of these critics who today are arguing, within the emotional context of the controversial Viet Nam war, that we have no business either in that country or anywhere on the Asian mainland.

Beyond complaints about specific aspects of our presence in Viet Nam, more than a few objectors make the point: They contend we should not act as Asia's guardian against the spread of tyranny, that this is a matter for Asians alone.

These critics, in other words, are the advocates of a limited world role for the United States.

LEFT UNANSWERED, in any real sense, is the question of who fills the breach against tyranny in a world with no other single powerful champion of freedom.

The "limited-role" advocates seem to argue that this should be no concern of ours.

Four presidents in a row have insisted on making any major threatened spread of tyranny a U.S. concern and have troubled themselves about the future of still-independent nations everywhere.

They have done so partly because they believe some country or group of countries must play the "large role" of world policeman. We are the only nation with the strength and will to do it.

BUT THEY BELIEVE FURTHER that our own national interest is at stake. In a nuclear age, at what point does a tyranny advancing across distant continents become a threat to U.S. independence?

It is the habit of American presidents, as with other national leaders, to resolve great doubts in favor of the national interest as they see it.

This is where they part from critics who prefer a less commanding American role. The critics believe the United States can do more for the world not by wielding its immense power but by serving as a model, and an exporter of social invention useful to aspiring peoples in many lands.

Clearly the gulf between the two is great. It has existed for a long time. Viet Nam simply makes it freshly visible.

Here and There

Russians Challenge U.S. Navy

NEWPORT, R. I. AP -- The growing maritime power of the Soviet Union represents a "startling challenge" to the United States, says Capt. Clifton R. Largent of the Naval War College here.

Capt. Largent told a meeting of the Sons of the American Revolution that the Russians intend to outdistance America in total shipping tonnage within the next few years building 225 ships a year. He said the United States was building only 65 ships annually.

CHICAGO AP -- A Canadian journalist, who spent three months in Red China last year, says the Chinese government's hate-America campaign is the best means it has to keep control of its 700 million people.

"The Western world can afford the luxury of allowing everyone to make up his own mind about the world," said Charles B. Lynch of the Southern Newspapers of Canada. "It is a luxury that China cannot afford."

NORWICH, Conn. AP -- John Serafin lives on Good Street, and that ain't good, he says.

"What's good about the street where I live?" he asked the City council at a meeting.

Serafin told the council the street hadn't been tarred in five years and that delivery trucks have nothing but broken bottles after going over the bumps.

Costumes in a Spring Mood

Costumes are favorites for spring this year. Confetti dots woven on white cotton brocade (left) give a crisp touch to the Malcolm Starr design by Elinor Simmons. The dress has a slightly raised waistline and is topped by a shaped, short, cutaway jacket. Beige and gold tweed by Stavropoulos (right) has waistline-tied gold chiffon blouse. The back of the jacket is loosely curved with a belt of the tweed.

Scully Critical of Salary Formula

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- Dr. Mark Scully, president of Southeast Missouri State College at Cape Girardeau, today was critical of the budget director's formula for figuring how much salary money was needed for all state colleges.

A spokesman for the director said it was a consistent formula and was used to figure the salary money for all schools.

Scully said the formula was consistently wrong.

This year, he said, Southeast will have about 240 more students than it had expected and by next year the enrollment may total 5,775, or 675 more than this year.

The school asked for $4,404,118 in salary money and the governor's budget cut that to $3,816,734.

Scully said he would raise next year's fee schedules for both Missouri and out of state students at Southeast. But, he said, Southeast now has only 288 non-Missourians enrolled.

He said the school could get along on the $334,275 in capital improvements money but if the legislature can find the money a physical education facility is badly needed. The governor had rejected a $648,639 request for that.

The Commission on Higher Education has recommended state colleges increase student fees next fall.

TOO FEW BATHROOMS SAID TO BE CAUSE OF DIVORCE

Does the home with too few bathrooms breed divorce? Some marriage counselors and sociologists claim that it does, the Plumbing - Heating - Cooling Information Bureau reports. At least it helps to push already quarreling couples over the brink if they start each day bickering over who gets to use the bathroom first. This type of problem is most acute in families where both the husband and wife are employed and have to report for work about the same time.

Financing Homes Difficult

By SAM DAWSON

AP Business News Analyst NEW YORK -- Shoppers for new homes may have more trouble this year finding someone to finance their mortgage. So government agencies think home building will trail last year's pace, which itself was disappointing.

Construction of other types of buildings is running at a record pace, however. And most signs point to a continuing boom. The big issue here is how high will construction workers' wages go. And the government is finding it tough going as it tries to hold the unions within its guidelines.

There may be about $1.5 billion less money available for mortgages this year than last, in the opinion of John E. Horne, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, which oversees and finances much of the mortgage lending business.

He lists two main reasons for the shrinkage in available mortgage funds. One is the big demand for loans of other types, both business and consumer, which keep the lending institutions hard pressed to find funds. The mortgage market looks less inviting to them this year.

The other reason, tied in with the first, is that interest rates have been rising faster than higher than expected a few months back. Yields on other investments are rising, making mortgages less alluring. Interest on mortgages also is going up -- and especially the interest which banks and other holders of funds are asking for loans to the mortgage-financing institutions.

Also tending to curb housing starts this year is the rise in construction costs, up 3.5 per cent in 1965. If labor costs are raised again, the price of new homes also may rise still higher.

Last year 1,503,000 new homes were started. This was 3 per cent fewer than in 1964.

The record of 1,900,000 was in 1950.

For all 1965 construction outlays are put at a record $71.3 billion, up 8 per cent from the $66.2 billion in 1964.

The Census Bureau reports public construction has been rising much faster than has home building. A mortgage squeeze could continue that trend.

U.S. as Guardian of Globe Or in Limited Role-Which?

BY BRUCE BISSAT
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The really deep rift over Vietnamese policy in the United States is not the one between the hawks and the doves. It is between those who see a large role and those who see a limited place for U.S. power in the world.

In the 20 years since World War II, the United States government has played the big role.

It has employed its power in Western Europe, Greece and Turkey, Cyprus, Lebanon, the Congo, Thailand, Laos, Viet Nam, Korea, Guatemala, the Dominican Republic.

Much of the time, in fact, the United States has been the world's one-country substitute for the United Nations in its role as pacifier of those who would subdue others.

AMERICA PLAYED THIS PART as global policeman because four presidents thought it had to. Leadership was thrust upon us. The U.N. was generally too weak.

Many liberal critics at home have either disapproved such uses or felt uncomfortable with them.

It is some of these critics who today are arguing, within the emotional context of the controversial Viet Nam war, that we have no business either in that country or anywhere on the Asian mainland.

Beyond complaints about specific aspects of our presence in Viet Nam, more than a few objectors make the point: They contend we should not act as Asia's guardian against the spread of tyranny, that this is a matter for Asians alone.

These critics, in other words, are the advocates of a limited world role for the United States.

LEFT UNANSWERED, in any real sense, is the question of who fills the breach against tyranny in a world with no other single powerful champion of freedom.

The "limited-role" advocates seem to argue that this should be no concern of ours.

Four presidents in a row have insisted on making any major threatened spread of tyranny a U.S. concern and have troubled themselves about the future of still-independent nations everywhere.

They have done so partly because they believe some country or group of countries must play the "large role" of world policeman. We are the only nation with the strength and will to do it.

BUT THEY BELIEVE FURTHER that our own national interest is at stake. In a nuclear age, at what point does a tyranny advancing across distant continents become a threat to U.S. independence?

It is the habit of American presidents, as with other national leaders, to resolve great doubts in favor of the national interest as they see it.

This is where they part from critics who prefer a less commanding American role. The critics believe the United States can do more for the world not by wielding its immense power but by serving as a model, and an exporter of social invention useful to aspiring peoples in many lands.

Clearly the gulf between the two is great. It has existed for a long time. Viet Nam simply makes it freshly visible.

Snider Outlines $173 Million Roads Program

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- M. J. Snider, chief highway engineer, outlined for the Senate Appropriations Committee today a construction and right of way program estimated to cost $173.3 million during the fiscal year starting July 1.

The department requested and the governor recommended an appropriation of $135 million from state road funds and $120 million from federal funds, although the federal figure is merely a broad estimate.

The department's request for administrative money to operate the huge program is $7,836,127.

For the 1966-67 fiscal year the department plans to spend $78.9 million on the interstate system, $44.3 million on the primary system, $28.5 million on the farm-to-market system and $21.6 million on the urban system. These figures include both state and federal funds.

Here and There Russians Challenge U.S. Navy

NEWPORT, R. I. AP -- The growing maritime power of the Soviet Union represents a "startling challenge" to the United States, says Capt. Clifton R. Largess of the Naval War College here.

Capt. Largess told a meeting of the Sons of the American Revolution that the Russians intend to outdistance America in total shipping tonnage within the next few years building 225 ships a year. He said the United States was building only 65 ships annually.

CHICAGO AP -- A Canadian Journalist, who spent three months in Red China last year, says the Chinese government's hate-America campaign is the best means it has to keep control of its 700 million people. "The Western world can afford the luxury of allowing everyone to make up his own mind about the world," said Charles B. Lynch of the Southern Newspapers of Canada. "It is a luxury that China cannot afford."

AUSTIN, Tex. AP -- Royce McPhail, grand dragon of the Texas Ku Klux Klan, says the Klan will rally here this spring for "an even harder line in Viet Nam--total victory."

NORWICH, Conn. AP -- John Serafin lives on Good Street, and that ain't good, he says.

"What's good about the street where I live?" he asked the City council at a meeting.

Serafin told the council the street hand't been tarred in five years and that delivery trucks have nothing but broken bottles after going over the bumps.

Costumes in a Spring Mood

Costumes are favorites for spring this year. Confetti dots woven on white cotton brocade (left) give a crisp touch to the Malcolm Starr design by Elinor Simmons. The dress has a slightly raised waistline and is topped by a shaped, short, cutaway jacket. Beige and gold tweed by Stavropoulos (right) has waistline-tied gold chiffon blouse. The back of the jacket is loosely curved with a belt of the tweed.

Scully Critical of Salary Formula

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- Dr. Mark Scully, president of Southeast Missouri State College at Cape Girardeau, today was critical of the budget director's formula for figuring how much salary money was needed for all state colleges.

A spokesman for the director said it was a consistent formula and was used to figure the salary money for all schools.

Scully said the formula was consistently wrong.

This year, he said, Southeast will have about 240 more students than it had expected and by next year the enrollment may total 5,775, or 675 more than this year.

The school asked for $4,404,118 in salary money and the governor's budget cut that to $3,816,734.

Scully said he would raise next year's fee schedules for both Missouri and out of state students at Southeast. But, he said, Southeast now has only 288 non-Missourians enrolled.

He said the school could get along on the $334,275 in capital improvements money but if the legislature can find the money a physical education facility is badly needed. The governor had rejected a $648,639 request for that.

The Commission on Higher Education has recommended state colleges increase student fees next fall.

TOO FEW BATHROOMS SAID TO BE CAUSE OF DIVORCE

Does the home with too few bathrooms breed divorce? Some marriage counselors and sociologists claim that it does, the Plumbing - Heating - Cooling Information Bureau reports. At least it helps to push already quarreling couples over the brink if they start each day bickering over who gets to use the bathroom first. This type of problem is most acute in families where both the husband and wife are employed and have to report for work about the same time.

Financing Homes Difficult

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK -- Shoppers for new homes may have more trouble this year finding someone to finance their mortgage. So government agencies think home building will trail last year's pace, which itself was disappointing.

Construction of other types of buildings is running at a record pace, however. And most signs point to a continuing boom. The big issue here is how high will construction workers' wages go. And the government is finding it tough going as it tries to hold the unions within its guidelines.

There may be about $1.5 billion less money available for mortgages this year than last, in the opinion of John E. Horne, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, which oversees and finances much of the mortgage lending business.

He lists two main reasons for the shrinkage in available mortgage funds. One is the big demand for loans of other types, both business and consumer, which keep the lending institutions hard pressed to find funds. The mortgage market looks less inviting to them this year.

The other reason, tied in with the first, is that interest rates have been rising faster than higher than expected a few months back. Yields on other investments are rising, making mortgages less alluring. Interest on mortgages also is going 70 -- and especially the interest which banks and other holders of funds are asking for loans to the mortgage-financing institutions.

Also tending to curb housing starts this year is the rise in construction costs, up 3.5 per cent in 1965. If labor costs are raised again, the price of new homes also may rise still higher.

Last year 1,503,000 new homes were started. This was 3 per cent fewer than in 1964.

The record of 1,900,000 was in 1960.

For all 1965 construction outlays are put at a record $71.3 billion, up 8 per cent from the $66.2 billion in 1964.

The Census Bureau reports public constructing has been rising much faster than has home building. A mortgage squeeze could continue that trend.

SAVING THE 'WILD RIVERS'

Preservation of remaining untamed rivers, much as forests and grasslands are maintained in their natural states by the present federal park and forests systems, continues to be a major conservationist goal of the Johnson administration. "Wild rivers" legislation introduced in the last session of Congress appeared again in the current one, where it was the first item passed by the Senate although shelved in House committee. As proposed by the administration, the measure would immediately place parts of five rivers under federal protection: Clearwater (2) and Salmon (3) in Idaho;

Rogue (5) in Oregon; Rio Grande (14) in New Mexico, and the Eleven Point (16) in Missouri. Thirteen additional rivers would be studied for possible inclusion in the wild rivers system: Skagit (1) in Washington; Missouri (4) in Montana; Green (6) in Wyoming; Wolf (7) in Wisconsin; Little Miami (8), Little Beaver (9) in Ohio; Hudson (10) in New York; Youghiogheny (11) in Maryland and Pennsylvania; Susquehanna (12) in New York and Pennsylvania; Capacon (13) in West Virginia; Niobrara (15) in Nebraska; Suwannee (17) in Georgia and Florida; Buffalo (18) in Tennessee.

SAVING THE 'WILD RIVERS'

Preservation of remaining untamed rivers, much as forests and grasslands are maintained in their natural states by the present federal park and forests systems, continues to be a major conservationist goal of the Johnson administration. "Wild rivers" legislation introduced in the last session of Congress appeared again in the current one, where it was the first item passed by the Senate although shelved in House committee. As proposed by the administration, the measure would immediately place parts of five rivers under federal protection: Clearwater (2) and Salmon (3) in Idaho;

Rogue (5) in Oregon; Rio Grande (14) in New Mexico, and the Eleven Point (16) in Missouri. Thirteen additional rivers would be studied for possible inclusion in the wild rivers system: Skagit (1) in Washington; Missouri (4) in Montana; Green (6) in Wyoming; Wolf (7) in Wisconsin; Little Miami (8), Little Beaver (9) in Ohio; Hudson (10) in New York; Youghiogheny (11) in Maryland and Pennsylvania; Susquehanna (12) in New York and Pennsylvania; Capacon (13) in West Virginia; Niobrara (15) in Nebraska; Suwannee (17) in Georgia and Florida; Buffalo (18) in Tennessee.

Rossen Always Rebel

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "I'm living on borrowed time," said Robert Rossen. "From now on, I'm going to do only the things I want to do."

We were lunching last fall in Sardi's, just off Shubert Alley in New York. The writer-director-producer had endured a serious illness in previous months, and three distinct brushes with death had altered his outlook.

"I think I'll teach," he remarked. "New York University has offered me a lecturer's post, and that appeals to me. There are some things I'd like to say about picture-making, and I want to express them to the younger generation."

"Anyway, I don't have any enthusiasm about making a picture right now. Not after that last one."

He referred to his 1965 release, "Lilith," during the filming of which he had to combat the temperament of Warren Beatty.

"It isn't worth that kind of grief," said Rossen. "I won't take it any more. I have nothing to say on the screen right now. Even if I never make another picture, I've got 'The Hustler' on my record. I'm content to let that one stand for me."

Rossen died last week without having made another film. At 58, he was still in his prime as a film creator, and his legacy included other achievements besides "The Hustler." Among them: "All the King's Men," "Body and Soul" and "The Brave Bulls."

Bob Rossen was always a rebel. The son of a New York rabbi, he drew his training from the radical theater of the Depression 30s. Hollywood called him to write such protest films as "They Won't Forget," "Dust Be My Destiny" and "Blues in the Night."

Like many tonight screen writers, Rossen grumbled over the way directors manhandled his scripts and he sought to direct himself. Harry Cohn of Columbia gave him the chance with "Johnny O'Clock," starring Dick Powell. Rossen left the lot for the high-voltage "Body and Soul," possibly the best prizefight film ever made. Rossen returned to Columbia for "All the King's Men."

"I was greatly influenced by 'Open City' and other naturalistic Italian films," he recalled last fall. "I knew I had to shoot the picture on location with unknown faces. Spencer Tracy was up for the role of Willie Stark, but I held out for Brod Crawford, whom I had seen do 'Of Mice and Men' on Broadway."

"All the King's Men" won the 1949 Oscars for best picture, best actor (Crawford) and best supporting actress (Mercedes McCambridge), but Rossen lost the directorial award to Joseph Mankiewicz' "A Letter to Three Wives."

Rossen took the Fifth Amendment during the Red hunt of 1950, but he recanted and was restored to favor. To the end he called his own shots. "If I can't do it my way, I won't do it," he declared.

Rossen Always Rebel

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "I'm living on borrowed time," said Robert Rossen. "From now on, I'm going to do only the things I want to do."

We were lunching last fall in Sardi's, just off Shubert Alley in New York. The writer-director-producer had endured a serious illness in previous months, and three distinct brushes with death had altered his outlook.

"I think I'll teach," he remarked. "New York University has offered me a lecturer's post, and that appeals to me. There are some things I'd like to say about picture-making, and I want to express them to the younger generation."

"Anyway, I don't have any enthusiasm about making a picture right now. Not after that last one."

He referred to his 1965 release, "L.H. Hush," during the filming of which he had to combat the temperament of Warren Beatty.

"It isn't worth that kind of grief," said Rossen. "I won't take it any more. I have nothing to say on the screen right now. Even if I never make another picture, I've got 'The Hustler' on my record. I'm content to let that one stand for me."

Rossen died last week without having made another film. At 58, he was still in his prime as a film creator, and his legacy included other achievements besides "The Hustler." Among them: "All the King's Men," "Body and Soul" and "The Brave Bulls."

Bob Rossen was always a rebel. The son of a New York rabbi, he drew his training from the radical theater of the Depression 30s. Hollywood called him to write such protest films as "They Won't Forget," "Dust Be My Destiny" and "Blues in the Night."

Like many topflight screen writers, Rossen grumbled over the way directors manhandled his scripts and he sought to direct himself. Harry Cohn of Columbia gave him the chance with "Johnny O'Clock," starring Dick Powell. Rossen left the lot for the high-voltage "Body and Soul," possibly the best prizefight film ever made. Rossen returned to Columbia for "All the King's Men."

"I was greatly influenced by 'Open City' and other naturalistic Italian films," he recalled last fall. "I knew I had to shoot the picture on location with unknown faces. Spencer Tracy was up for the role of Willie Stark, but I held out for Brod Crawford, whom I had seen do 'Of Mice and Men' on Broadway."

"All the King's Men" won the 1949 Oscars for best picture, best actor (Crawford) and best supporting actress (Mercedes McCambridge), but Rossen lost the directorial award to Joseph Mankiewicz' "A Letter to Three Wives."

Rossen took the Fifth Amendment during the Red hunt of 1950, but he recanted and was restored to favor. To the end he called his own shots. "If I can't do it my way, I won't do it," he declared.

The Prayer

For Today From

And it came to pass, that, while the command together and reasoned, Jesus himself drew near, and went with them. (Luke 24:15)

ANN LANDERS Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: Several months ago my doctor told me I would have a baby in April -- between the 12th and 20th. This is our first child, so naturally Zelle and I are very excited.

A few weeks ago Zelle asked me if I thought I would have the baby by April 15th. I told him there was no way of knowing for sure and I asked him why he cared. He said, "We need the tax deduction." I was offended that he would think of money at a time like this but I kept quiet.

This morning Zelle said, "Why don't you jump off the table a few times? It might bring the baby sooner." I told him that was the worst thing he ever said in his whole life. He replied, "Any time you would get out of two months of lugging that load."

I am very disappointed that my husband is so insensitive to what a woman goes through to have a baby. Believe me I am not planning on jumping off any tables, but he is wrong about babies being fully developed at seven months, isn't he? -- P. G. ARLENE

Dear Arlene: Babies born before the seventh month stand a poor chance of survival. Moreover, his suggestion that you jump off a table to get the baby here early and save a buck is absolutely shameful. Someone ought to tell Zelle that the April 15th deadline is for FILING. He missed the tax deduction deadline on December 31st, 1965.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I have both read your book "Ann Landers Talks To Teen-Agers About Sex" (at the request of our 16-year-old daughter) and we feel that you possess a great deal of common sense. We want you to give us a one word reply to our question, "Yes" or "No."

It is not essential that you give reasons for your reply because there has been endless discussion on the subject. Your answer will be final.

Our 16-year-old daughter has been invited by the parents of her boy friend on a 10-day "camping trip." Their son is 16, too, and has no brothers or sisters. It would be just the four of them. Yes or no? -- ALLEARS

Dear Ann Landers: Please tell me if you think I am losing my mind. I wouldn't discuss this with anyone else, but if you feel I need to see a psychiatrist I will make an appointment at once.

Whenever I leave the house I check the gas jets even though I never leave the kitchen without making sure that they are off.

Whenever I step into a car I make certain that I put my right foot into the car first. Somehow I feel this assures me of a safe journey. I have never been in an accident so I cannot understand why I go out of my way to "protect" myself.

Are these little peculiar habits signs of insanity? I need your help.

--UNSURE AND WORRIED

Dear Unsure: Everyone has a few odd habits (the experts call them neurotic compulsions) and some make less sense than yours. So long as the habits do not interfere with your daily life there is no reason to be concerned. Signs of insanity? NO!

Do you feel ill at ease, out of it? Is everybody having a good time but you? Write for Ann Landers' booklet, "They Key To Popularity," enclosing with your request 35¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor:

The networks have made us intensely aware of intellectuals, Communists, students and their hangers-on demonstrating against our country opposing Communism. When this attitude carries through to members of the United States Senate condemning our President's present attitude against Communist aggression, we have some means of evaluating members of Congress. The ADA ratings are a leading barometer. All the Republican Senators, with three radicals left out, average ADA 14. The Senate 16-member group who signed the letter asking the President to continue cessation of bombing in Vietnam average ADA 82. Early in the Presidential Primary of 1960, both Senators John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson made statements discouraging the support of ADA. It now appears they were right as far as the vital interests of the United States are concerned.

Yours very truly,
Dick Whittington

The Honorable Stuart Symington
United States Senate
Washington, D. C.

R. C. Martin Says:
Dear Mr. Symington:

After having watched the Senate's Foreign Relations Committee hearings with great concern, I feel it has rendered the Nation a great service.

I appreciate your apparent personal grave concern and direct approach to the many and apparently almost insurmountable problems there.

I feel somewhat more secure now than before the hearings. I was relieved to learn that the Country has many great men with fine minds, such as General Gavin, who are also concerned about our great Country, and where we are headed.

We should act with prudence and somewhat caution in our approach to that war with a clear and definite objective in mind. But we should not, once the boys are on the fighting field, tie their hands. Give them the equipment they need. Let the fighting men have a clear understanding of what they are fighting for; give them a worthy objective. If it is a worthy cause, as this one seems to be, they will win.

As you know, due to the fact that so many changes have been made in the government in Vietnam, the American people are reluctant to go all out for a people, who seem so uncertain as to what they really want. Are the Vietnamese people sure about the form of government they want? Or is it a fact that this country is trying to establish a government of our choosing? If the Vietnamese want a government such as this country would establish there, then why could we not form some kind of a coalition government with them? Some may say they would not trust us in such a venture, if not, then it is time we came home.

If the American people were sure they have a just and sound cause there, I am sure they would give their unending support. But there is a feeling among many in light of history, that we cannot trust this government. If we had a coalition government with them, then the American people would feel they had something more sound to work from. Therefore, I feel sure they would be more willing to give their full support.

Recently, I wrote you about the Communist threat to all free men in all the world and especially in these United States. I ask if the Communists here in America were the same as those in other parts of the world, and if they had the same objective. If they are the same, and do have the same objective, then why do we handle them so softly here at home? While on the other hand we make such drastic and costly attempts to stop them in other parts of the world.

In your letter you made no attempt, as far as I could tell, to answer this vital question. I hope you, as the fine Senator you are, will give some serious thought to this question.

I also would like to add that I do not share the views of the Supreme Court in its rulings on matters pertaining to Communism in these United States.

However, I think I share your views primarily on Vietnam. Give us a clear perspective, a sound coalition government there, prove to the American people that their money is not being wasted, and that our boys are not dying in vain, then they will give their government their undying support.

Sincerely yours,
R. C. Martin

Q-How fast does maple sap drip?

A-If the day is cold and overcast, very slowly. If at all; if a warming sun appears after a cold night, it flows faster. But it always drips, never runs. The drops may come in rapid succession, as many as 100 per minute.

The Prayer

For Today From
The Upper Room

And it came to pass, that, while the command together and reasoned, Jesus himself drew near, and went with them. (Luke 24:15)
PRAYER: Grant us Thy closeness, O God, and the desire to draw near to Thee, knowing that Thou wilt draw near to us to sustain us as Thy witnesses. In Jesus' name we ask. Amen.

ANN LANDERS Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: Several months ago my doctor told me I would have a baby in April -- between the 12th and 20th. This is our first child, so naturally Zelle and I are very excited. A few weeks ago Zelle asked me if I thought I would have the baby by April 15th. I told him there was no way of knowing for sure and I asked him why he cared. He said, "We need the tax deduction." I was offended that he would think of money at a time like this but I kept quiet.

This morning Zelle said, "Why don't you jump off the table a few times? It might bring the baby sooner." I told him that was the worst thing he ever said in his whole life. He replied, "Any time after seven months a baby is fully developed. And just think -- you would get out of two months of lugging that load." I am very disappointed that my husband is so insensitive to what a woman goes through to have a baby. Believe me I am not planning on jumping off any tables, but he is wrong about babies being fully developed at seven months, isn't he? -- P. G. ARLENE

Dear Arlene: Babies born before the seventh month stand a poor chance of survival. Moreover, his suggestion that you jump off a table to get the baby here early and save a buck is absolutely shameful. Someone ought to tell Zelle that the April 15th deadline is for FILING. He missed the tax deduction deadline on December 31st, 1965.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I have both read your book "Ann Landers Talks To Teen-Agers About Sex" (at the request of our 16-year-old daughter) and we feel that you possess a great deal of common sense. We want you to give us a one word reply to our question, "Yes" or "No."

It is not essential that you give reasons for your reply because there has been endless discussion on the subject. Your answer will be final.

Our 16-year-old daughter has been invited by the parents of her boy friend on a 10-day "amping trip. Their son is 16, too, and has no brothers or sisters. It would be just the four of them. Yes or no? -- ALL EARS

Dear All: No. And thank you for making it so easy.

Dear Ann Landers: Please tell me if you think I am losing my mind. I wouldn't discuss this with anyone else, but if you feel I need to see a psychiatrist I will make an appointment at once.

Whenever I leave the house I check the gas jets even though I never leave the kitchen without making sure that they are off.

Whenever I step into a car I make certain that I put my right foot into the car first. Somehow I feel this assures me of a safe journey. I have never been in an accident so I cannot understand why I go out of my way to "protect" myself.

Are these little peculiar habits signs of insanity? I need your help.

-- UNSURE AND WORRIED
Dear Unsure: Everyone has a few odd habits (the experts call them neurotic compulsions) and some make less sense than yours. So long as the habits do not interfere with your daily life there is no reason to be concerned. Signs of insanity? NO!

Do you feel ill at ease... out of it? Is everybody having a good time but you? Write for Ann Landers' booklet, "They Key To Popularity," enclosing with your request 35¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor:

The networks have made us intensely aware of intellectuals, Communists, students and their hangers-on demonstrating against our country opposing Communism. When this attitude carries through to members of the United States Senate condemning our President's present attitude against Communist aggression, we have some means of evaluating members of Congress. The ADA ratings are a leading barometer. All the Republican Senators, with three radicals left out, average ADA 14. The Senate 16-member group who signed the letter asking the President to continue cessation of bombing in Vietnam average ADA 82. Early in the Presidential Primary of 1960, both Senators John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson made statements discouraging the support of ADA. It now appears they were right as far as the vital interests of the United States are concerned.

Yours very truly,
Dick Whittington

The Honorable Stuart Symington
United States Senate
Washington, D. C.

R. C. Martin Says:

Dear Mr. Symington, After having watched the Senate's Foreign Relations Committee hearings with great concern, I feel it has rendered the Nation a great service.

I appreciate your apparent personal grave concern and direct approach to the many and apparently almost insurmountable problems there.

I feel somewhat more secure now than before the hearings. I was relieved to learn that the Country has many great men with fine minds, such as General Gavin, who are also concerned about our great Country, and where we are headed.

We should act with prudence and somewhat caution in our approach to that war with a clear and definite objective in mind. But we should not, once the boys are on the fighting field, tie their hands. Give them the equipment they need. Let the fighting men have a clear understanding of what they are fighting for; give them a clear objective. If it is a worthy cause, as this one seems to be, they will win.

As you know, due to the fact that so many changes have been made in the government in Vietnam, the American people are reluctant to go all out for a people, who seem so uncertain as to what they really want. Are the Vietnamese people sure about the form of government they want? Or is it a fact that this country is trying to establish a government of our choosing? If the Vietnamese want a government such as this country would establish here, then why could we not form some kind of a coalition government with them? Some may say they would not trust us in such a venture, if not, then it is time we came home.

If the American people were sure they would be more willing to give their full support. Recently, I wrote you about the Communist threat to all free men in all the world and especially in these United States. I ask if the Communists here in America were the same as those in other parts of the world, and if they had the same objective, if they are the same, and do have the same objective, then why do we handle them so softly here at home? While on the other hand we make such drastic and costly attempts to stop them in other parts of the world.

In your letter you made no attempt, as far as I could tell, to answer this vital question. I hope you, as the fine Senator you are, will give some serious thought to this question. I also would like to see that I do not share the views of the Supreme Court in its rulings on matters pertaining to Communism in these United States.

However, I think I share your views primarily on Vietnam. Give us a clear perspective, a sound coalition government there, prove to the American people that their money is not being wasted, and that our boys are not dying in vain, then they will give their government their undying support.

Sincerely yours,
R. C. Martin

Q--What is the difference in weight of a man's heart compared to a woman's.

A--A man's heart weighs around 11 ounces, a woman's 9 ounces.

Q--How fast does maple sap drip?

A--If the day is cold and overcast, very slowly, if at all; if a warming sun appears after a cold night, it flows faster. But it always drips, never runs. The drops may come in rapid succession, as many as 100 per minute.

ABOUT OUR SCHOOLS

by LYNN TWITTY

Several times, during the past few weeks, we have indicated our concern about the Federal budgetary cut-back of funds to support school milk and lunch programs. Specifically, the Administration has proposed that the milk fund be cut from $103 million to $21 million and to cut back the lunch program subsidy by $19 million. This in a time of increasing numbers of children in school, and inflated cost of providing food services to our children. If accomplished this cut in financial support must mean either that the quality of food services must be cut back drastically or a very considerable hike in the cost of the meal to the child. If the cost is increased many children, now having difficulty in participating at the present low cost, would not be able to afford a higher priced meal. Either alternative is objectionable and contrary to the health and welfare of our children.

It would seem that the funds to restore these cuts or otherwise continue this program so vital to our children's interest, could come from other projects, such as Urban Recreation which does not appear of the same importance, or to borrow the small amount involved from our Foreign Aid Program, which we are sure is essential, and this would cut back Foreign Aid so little that it would scarcely be noticed.

Our Representative to Congress, Paul C. Jones, has strongly objected to this cut and as a member of the House Agricultural Committee, is in a good position to be heard. We suggest that our school people, parents and all who are interested in healthier, better educated, children communicate their support to Mr. Jones. We appreciate his concern and commend him for it.

It is sometimes assumed that children from the slums or otherwise coming from very disadvantaged homes, do not have ability to do high quality college work. One reason for this assumption is that most of these students do poorly on intelligence tests or other standardized tests used by most colleges as a basis for entrance. Harvard University has proven that many of these people can be very successful in college. They demonstrated that many of these economically or socially disadvantaged boys and girls do have outstanding ability, many times above that indicated by the tests given by our schools. Harvard chose 200 students for entrance to that very prestigious institution, coming from circumstances not normally thought to make them good college risks. Most were reared in city slums. More than 50 per cent were Negroes. Some the sons of unemployed or at best migrant workers. 85 per cent of this group have graduated, some with honors. One with a Rhodes scholarship.

A common characteristic of this group, chosen for the opportunity to go to Harvard, was their courageous response to poverty-stricken up-bringing. And as one Harvard Dean said, "We are looking for boys who are tough in the psychological sense, and resilient."

If there is a conclusion to be reached from this experience, as we think there is, it is that too much weight is given to standardized tests scores which in the main can only test experiences and the disadvantaged child simply does not have the experience which the more fortunate child has. Also the ability is not limited to the children of the economically well-to-do but that there are many children whose potential for success is many times not realized because he is not given the opportunity to develop through higher education. This is a loss not only to the individual, but to the nation.

The Board of Education may be the community's largest employer; if not, one of the largest, with a total of 418 people now employed in some capacity in the schools. Of these, 208 are teachers, or professional certificated people directly involved in administration, supervision and teaching. The remaining 210 work as teaching assistants or in performing the many service occupations required in the operation of the school system. There is one coordinator of Elementary and Secondary Education Act projects; 98 teacher aids, 27 clerical and secretarial employees, 7 registered or licensed practical nurses, 11 bus drivers, 36 food service employees, and 30 custodial and maintenance workers.

The $1,355,000 payroll for this sizable operation is mostly spent with Sikeston business and professional men, farmers or service organizations. Not only do the schools perform their primary function of educating over 4,000 students, with additional education opportunities for over 1,000 adults each year and other community services, but they also add to the business climate and economy of the community.

Of the total annual, approximate $3,000,000, budget of the schools only $592,255 was paid directly last year by local tax payers. The remainder came from other sources outside the community. Some of this of course was paid to the state and Federal Government by Sikeston area tax payers, but not nearly to extent that the schools brought into the community.

The annual school election will be held this year on Tuesday, April 5. Voters will be asked by the Board of Education to approve the same $4.00 tax levy under which the schools are now operating. While this appears to be a relatively high levy, there are a considerable number of schools in the state voting higher taxes and in relation to the state tax commissions estimate of assessed valuations in Scott County, our $4.00 levy is only equal to a $2.90 levy in a county where taxable property is assessed at 30 per cent of its actual value.

The schools here have operated with a $4.00 levy for the past 8 years and on occasion, where there was a more than average increase in assessed valuation, the rate has been lowered.

Seismometers Placed In Bootheel

MALDEN -- The Department of Geophysics and Geophysical Engineering of St. Louis University has announced plans to place a seismometer on the property of St. Ann's Catholic church.

Arrangements were completed by William Stauder of the University and Father Jerome Eschbacher of Malden.

The project will be carried out in connection with the seismological experiment being conducted by the university. The seismometer, to measure ground motion, will be placed in a hole about 200 to 250 feet deep on rock material. A wire will connect the instrument to an amplifier and transmitting unit, which will deliver information to a telephone wire. The amplifier will be housed in an aluminum case about the size of a suitcase. It is to be stored in a building on the property.

Other stations are planned for Portageville and New Madrid. The small triangular network will be used to monitor the occurrence of smaller earthquakes in Southeast Missouri and to gain information on the depth of focus of these events.

Don't believe the old adage that lightning doesn't strike twice, says the weather bureau. In Illinois a farmer's barn was set afire by lightning, killing all the livestock except two horses. A week later it struck his metal hayshed, destroying it and then a few days later it flicked along a fence and knocked the farmer unconscious. A few months later a lightning bolt followed him into a neighbor's barn and killed him, but injured nothing else.

Hint of Change In Air

NEW YORK (AP) — Salesmen from the three major networks are busily peddling next season's shows in tentative entertainment schedules to Madison Avenue. Hints of all sorts of change are, as usual, leaking out.

For instance, Andy Williams' current sponsor expects to put a Western in Williams' current spot. NBC, which likes the variety show, is currently trying to persuade the singing star to move his show in the difficult hour period Sunday night after "Bonanza."

CBS' "Perry Mason," it now appears, is almost certain to disappear, and Garry Moore and his new variety hour will challenge the perennial giant of the ratings, "Bonanza."

Among shows which may disappear are "The Munsters" and "My Favorite Martian" on CBS, both excursions into comedy-fantasy. But the expected demise of these plus the new "The Smothers Brothers Show," do not mean that comedy-fantasy is dead; ABC's "Bewitched" and NBC's "I Dream of Jeannie" are still coming on strong. And, of course, there's always "Batman."

"Laredo" appears to be a casualty after a season, and so does "The Legend of Jesse James," but all the older Westerns seem to be good for another season and some new ones are penciled into the schedules of all three networks. Status of "Shenandoah" is still uncertain.

"Gomer Pyle" may wind up in a Wednesday night spot, taking over the half hour now occupied by "The Dick Van Dyke Show," which will call it a day to give Van Dyke a chance to pursue his film career.

NBC's "The Man From U.N.C.L.E." may be scheduled at an earlier hour — 8:30 EST — Friday evening. Also there will probably be a sequel to it, "The Girls From U.N.C.L.E.," early on Tuesday nights. And ABC's "Peyton Place" is expected to be cut back from three to two episodes a week.

After the success of NBC's "Get Smart," spoofing secret agents, there will be a comedy show on CBS spoofing "The Fugitive," a successful adventure show on ABC, and another, "The Hero," kidding TV Westerns, on NBC, which has at least two very successful ones.

Of course, fate of all the candidates depends upon whether the networks can find sponsors for them. And there are likely to be many erasures on the fall blueprints before it is in final form.

MOPAC Buys Santa Fe Stock

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Officers of the Missouri Pacific Railroad indicated Wednesday an announced purchase of two million shares of Santa Fe preferred stock is a step toward a union of the two railroads.

Informed sources said MOPAC paid nearly $22 million for the stock.

In a joint statement, Downing B. Jenks, MOPAC president, and W. G. Marbury, MOPAC executive committee chairman and board chairman of Mississippi River Corp., said:

"It has been obvious for some time that Santa Fe-Missouri Pacific is a natural union, however accomplished. This union would create a transportation system which would be able to compete effectively with the other great system proposed for the western half of the United States."

Split Looms

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Sen. Patrick McNamara's decision to retire from the U.S. Senate opens the way for what could be a party-splitting battle for the Democratic nomination.

If Detroit Mayor Jerome P. Cavanagh and former Michigan Gov. G. Mennen Williams both seek the nomination it could bring the most serious Democratic split in Michigan since the 1960 gubernatorial primary.

McNamara, 71, announced in Washington Wednesday that he would not seek re-election this year.

Michigan's senior senator, hospitalized off and on in recent years, blamed "relatively minor ailments" for his expected decision to quit.

ABOUT OUR SCHOOLS

by LYNN TWITTY

Several times, during the past few weeks, we have indicated our concern about the Federal budgetary cut-back of funds to support school milk and lunch programs. Specifically, the Administration has proposed that the milk fund be cut from $103 million to $21 million and to cut back the lunch program subsidy by $19 million. This is a time of increasing numbers of children in school, and inflated cost of providing food services to our children. If accomplished this cut in financial support must mean either that the quality of food services must be cut back drastically or a very considerable hike in the cost of the meal to the child. If the cost is increased many children, now having difficulty in participating at the present low cost, would not be able to afford a higher priced meal. Either alternative is objectionable and contrary to the health and welfare of our children.

It would seem that the funds to restore these cuts or otherwise continue this program so vital to our children's interest, could come from other projects, such as Urban Recreation which does not appear of the same importance, or to borrow the small amount involved from our Foreign Aid Program, which we are sure is essential, and this would cut back Foreign Aid so little that it would scarcely be noticed.

Our Representative to Congress, Paul C. Jones, has strongly objected to this cut and as a member of the House Agricultural Committee, is in a good position to be heard. We suggest that our school people, parents and all who are interested in healthier, better educated, children communicate their support to Mr. Jones. We appreciate his concern and commend him for it.

It is sometimes assumed that children from the slums or otherwise coming from very disadvantaged homes, do not have ability to do high quality college work. One reason for this assumption is that most of these students do poorly on intelligence tests or other standardized tests used by most colleges as a basis for entrance. Harvard University has proven that many of these people can be very successful in college. They demonstrated that many of these economically or socially disadvantaged boys and girls do have outstanding ability, many times above that indicated by the tests given by our schools. Harvard chose 200 students for entrance to that very prestigious institution, coming from circumstances not normally thought to make them good college risks. Most were reared in city slums. More than 50 per cent were Negroes. Some the sons of unemployed or at best migrant workers. 85 per cent of this group have graduated, some with honors. One with a Rhodes scholarship.

A common characteristic of this group, chosen for the opportunity to go to Harvard, was their courageous response to poverty-stricken up bringing. And as one Harvard Dean said, "We are looking for boys who are tough in the psychological sense, and resilient."

If there is a conclusion to be reached from this experience, as we think there is, it is that too much weight is given to standardized tests scores which

In the main can only test experiences and the disadvantaged child simply does not have the experience which the more fortunate child has. Also the ability is not limited to the children of the economically well-to-do but that there are many children whose potential for success is many times not realized because he is not given the opportunity to develop through higher education. This is a loss not only to the individual, but to the nation.

The Board of Education may be the community's largest employer; if not, one of the largest, with a total of 418 people now employed in some capacity in the schools. Of these, 208 are teachers, or professional certificated people directly involved in administration, supervision and teaching. The remaining 210 work as teaching assistants or in performing the many service occupations required in the operation of the school system. ## Services for Rail Accident Victim Sunday

MALDEN -- Services for Abram Price, 56, who was killed in a railroad accident Tuesday, will be at 1 p.m. Sunday in the Landess Funeral Chapel with the Rev. E. D. Boxley officiating. Burial will be in the New Macedonia cemetery.

A funeral home employee pushed a handcar into three section workers. Price was killed and two other men were injured.

Price was killed instantly when the southbound Cotton Belt locomotive struck the cart two miles northeast of Idalia in Stoddard county.

Injured and in good condition at Poplar Bluff hospital were J. V. Caudle, 59, of Rison, Ark., and Cleo Clemons, 49, also of Malden.

Clemons suffered minor knee injuries and Caudle had back and hip injuries.

Stoddard County Coroner Ray Rainey said the section gang, traveling north, apparently misjudged the speed of the train. He said the workmen tried to pull the car off the tracks but were too late.

Caudle told a reporter there were about eight men in the crew riding the car. He said the train came around a curve and "all I heard was a big bam."

Caudle said the foreman of the crew, Charlie Willis, was on foot near the car and warned the crew a train was coming. "But we just couldn't get the car off the tracks soon enough," Caudle said.

Coroner Rainey said the engineer of the train was W. W. Davidson.

When asked what worried them most, the majority listed good grades. But when asked what went into the makeup of a campus leader, scholarship ranked last.

The materialism of the youngsters, Barron said, is due to "pressure to achieve a 'grades ticket' to the kind of life their parents want for them."

Barron contends that the general concept of the teenager does not apply to the Webster Groves 16-year-olds. He said they are not rebellious, very few

MALDEN -- Services for Abram Price, 56, who was killed in a railroad accident Tuesday, will be at 1 p.m. Sunday in the Landess Funeral Chapel with the Rev. E. D. Boxley officiating. Burial will be in the New Macedonia cemetery.

A freight train from aotive pushed a handcar into three section workers. Price was killed and two other men were injured.

Price was killed instantly when the southbound Cotton Belt locomotive struck the cart two miles northeast of Idalia in Stoddard county.

Injured and in good condition at Poplar Bluff hospital were J. V. Caudle, 59, of Rison, Ark., and Cleo Clemmons, 49, also of Malden.

Clemmons suffered minor knee injuries and Caudle had back and hip injuries.

Stoddard County Coroner Ray Rainey said the section gang, traveling north, apparently misjudged the speed of the train. He said the workmen tried to pull the car off the tracks but were too late.

Caudle told a reporter there were about eight men in the crew riding the car. He said the train came around a curve and "all I heard was a big bam."

Caudle said the foreman of the crew, Charlie Willis, was on foot near the car and warned the crew a train was coming. "But we just couldn't get the car off the tracks soon enough," Caudle said.

Coroner Rainey said the engineer of the train was W. W. Davidson.

Mrs. Wayne Douglas Washer

Jane Ellen White Is Wed To Wayne Douglas Washer

CHARLESTON -- In a Communion Hall wedding at St. Henry's Catholic church Miss Jane Ellen White, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. David White and Wayne Douglas Washer, son of Mrs. Mattie Washer and the late Charles Washer, were married. The ceremony took place Saturday at 9 a.m. with Monsignor Charles P. Schmidt officiating.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a two piece street-length dress of white brocade. Her short veil fell from a cluster of tulle roses and she carried a bouquet of white roses.

Miss Mary Beth Grisso of Charleston served as maid of honor and Miss Sally Featherston of Poplar Bluff served as bridesmaid. The attendants were blue street-length dresses with blue veils as their head pieces and carried bouquets of blue carnations.

Michael Peters of Bertrand, roommate of the groom at Southeast Missouri State College, served as best man. Robert Earl Criss of Charleston, cousin of the bride, served as groomsmen. Ushers were Charles Wright of Charleston and Jerry Washer, brother of the groom.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents at 110 North Sixth St. The bride's table was covered with a white cut work cloth over blue and was centered with the wedding cake which was blanked by candles that were circled with blue carnations. Miss Donna Criss, cousin of the bride, presided at the guest register and Miss Vickie Gillis, Poplar Bluff, and Miss Mary Jane Bennett of Charleston served.

After the reception the young couple left for Springfield, where the groom has transferred as a student. The groom is a graduate of Charleston high school, class of 1963, and has been attending Southeast Missouri State College in Springfield. The bride is a graduate of St. Henry's high school, class of 1965, and has been attending Southeast Missouri State College. The couple are now at home at 714 East Monroe in Springfield.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Clarence E. White, Jr. and Mrs. Harlow Bixler, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Moody, Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Page, Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Lockhart and Mr. and Mrs. J. B. McFall.

DE XTER -- A plan under which the federal government would share in the cost of a park improvement program for Dexter, including the construction of a swimming pool, was outlined to a group of interested city officials, park board members and Junior Chamber of Commerce members here Friday by Joseph Jaeger, Executive Secretary of the State Inter-Agency Council for outdoor Recreation.

Jaeger flew to Dexter for the meeting which had been arranged by State Rep. Tom F. Baker, who also attended. The federal government is offering grant-in-aid money on a matching basis for such recreational improvements, Jaeger told the group.

Jaeger, park board members and Jaycee members looked at the proposed site for the swimming pool, and later met at the Airport Cafe, where the entire program was discussed in detail. Jaeger said that it would be necessary for the park board, of which Mrs. J. E. Strickland is president, to develop a plan for the development of its parks and recreational facilities, of which the swimming pool would be a part.

Saturday afternoon, work on developing such a plan began at a meeting here of Junior Chamber of Commerce leaders and members of the Park Board to formulate a working plan for park development, including a swimming pool.

Details of this plan will be discussed with Mayor Melvin Gainer and City Council members.

Dexter Parks May Get U.S. Cash

DE XTER -- A plan under which the federal government would share in the cost of a park improvement program for Dexter, including the construction of a swimming pool, was outlined to a group of interested city officials, park board members and Junior Chamber of Commerce members here Friday by Joseph Jaeger, Executive Secretary of the State Inter-Agency Council for outdoor Recreation.

Jaeger flew to Dexter for the meeting which had been arranged by State Rep. Tom F. Baker, who also attended. The federal government is offering grant-in-aid money on a matching basis for such recreational improvements, Jaeger told the group.

Jaeger, park board members and Jaycee members looked at the proposed site for the swimming pool, and later met at the Airport Cafe, where the entire program was discussed in detail. Jaeger said that it would be necessary for the park board, of which Mrs. J. E. Strickland is president, to develop a plan for the development of its parks and recreational facilities, of which the swimming pool would be a part.

Saturday afternoon, work on developing such a plan began at a meeting here of Junior Chamber of Commerce leaders and members of the Park Board to formulate a working plan for park development, including a swimming pool.

Details of this plan will be discussed with Mayor Melvin Gainer and City Council members.

Main Street, U.S.A.

by Bert Mills
by Bert Mills National Newspaper Association
WASHINGTON, D. C. -- Reapportionment is one of those words that is difficult for most people to comprehend. Yet it goes to the very roots of our democratic system in which the right of self-government is inherent.

Reapportionment has been big news at both the national and local level since 1964 when the U. S. Supreme Court shattered its own hands-off precedent by rendering an historic decision which decreed "one man, one vote."

This decision affected every voter in the nation. It had a special impact on small towns because it meant that many of them would lose their local representation in state legislatures. With population substituted for geography as the basis for electing state legislators, the cities gained a vast advantage over non-urban communities.

About 30 state legislatures have now bowed to the Supreme Court edict by reapportioning seats in the state legislature strictly on a population basis. Some elections have already been held under the new "one man, one vote" system. But the fight against the new order is far from over.

Last August, the U. S. Senate voted 57-39 in favor of a Constitutional amendment which calls for the people of each state to vote every 10 years as to whether they wish their state legislature to be apportioned on a strict population basis or whether membership in one house shall be determined on a geographical basis.

Despite the clear majority of 18 votes for the Constitutional amendment, it fell seven votes short of passage because of the requirement of a two-thirds majority.

Even if Congress adopts the amendment, it will take effect only after ratification by 34 states -- another two-thirds majority.

BATTLE JOINED A NEW Now the Senate is about to reconsider the reapportionment question, possibly for the last time. As more and more states bow to the Supreme Court decree, it becomes more difficult to upset the far-reaching decision. It appears to be now or never for opponents of the "one vote" philosophy.

As more and more city politicians take office in state capitols, chances of ratification of any Constitutional amendment sent to the states by Congress will diminish. A "halt accompli" is in the process of being achieved. But the battle has by no means been surrendered.

Reapportionment is not a partisan issue but leadership of the campaign to gain adoption of a Constitutional amendment has been assumed by the Republican Senate leader, Everett Dirksen of Illinois. Despite his minority position, he has just achieved a major legislative feat by scuttling repeal of Section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act.

Dirksen's amendment is S. J. Res. 103. He has expressed confidence it will prevail. In promising "the good fight again this year," he said: "We will not only move it through the Senate, we will pass it through the House and into the states for ratification." Maybe some neutral observers see it as an uphill fight, requiring much support from back home.

Sen. Dirksen has stated: "We are taking this cause to the people. We say to them, this is your chance to be heard on the most fundamental issue ever to confront you. We are willing to trust them, which our opponents are not, because we draw upon a deep well of faith in the people. We believe in our hearts that the people have a great, common dedication to preserve representative government in this nation."

In Dirksen's view, the reapportionment question is "the gravest Constitutional issue ever to confront us." He contends that the "population only" edict of the Supreme Court has made millions of Americans "voiceless voters." He wants them to make themselves heard during the coming Congressional debate lest they be silenced permanently for lack of representation.

The major lobbying group pushing the Dirksen amendment has an interesting name: "Committee for Government of the People." It has produced a red, white and blue pamphlet entitled: "Let the People Decide."

Where does Lyndon B. Johnson stand on this question? He has not taken sides, at least publicly. A number of members of the Democratic party are co-sponsors of the Dirksen resolution. Senate Majority Leader Majority Leader Mike Mansfield (D., Mont.) voted for it last year.

Jane Ellen White Is Wed

To Wayne Douglas Washer

CHARLESTON -- In a Communion Rite wedding at St. Henry's Catholic church Miss Jane Ellen White, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. David White and Wayne Douglas Washer, son of Mrs. Mattie Washer and the late Charles Washer, were married. The ceremony took place Saturday at 9 a.m. with Monsignor Charles P. Schmitt officiating.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a two piece street-length dress of white tulle. Her short veil fell from a cluster of tulle roses and she carried a bouquet of white roses.

Miss Mary Beth Grissio of Charleston served as maid of honor and Miss Selly Featherston of Poplar Bluff served as bridesmaid. The attendants were blue street-length dresses with blue veils as their head pieces and carried bouquets of blue carnations.

Michael Peters of Bertrand, roommate of the groom at Southeast Missouri State College, served as best man. Robert Earl Criss of Charleston, cousin of the bride, served as groomsmen. Ushers were Charles Wright of Charleston and Jerry Washer, brother of the groom.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents at 110 North Sixth St. The bride's table was covered with a white cut work cloth over blue and was centered with the wedding cake which was blanketed by candles that were circled with blue carnations. Miss Donna Criss, cousin of the bride, presided at the guest register and Miss Vickie Gillis, Poplar Bluff, and Miss Mary Jane Bennett of Charleston served.

After the reception the young couple left for Springfield, where the groom has transferred as a student. ## Faces Rape Charge

DEXTER -- Gene Edward Meakan, 23 year old Bernie resident, was arrested in Bloomfield Friday, according to Sheriff Ralph Temples and a charge of statutory rape has been filed.

Meakan posted a $2500 bond and will appear in magistrate court Thursday, the sheriff said.

In order to attract the 1968 Presidential nominating conventions, Miami Beach is considering doubling the size of its convention hall.

Russia has a new 5-year plan. Rice is now being black-marketed in India.

The major lobbying group pushing the Dirksen amendment has an interesting name: "Committee for Government of the People." It has produced a red, white and blue pamphlet entitled: "Let the People Decide."

Where does Lyndon B. Johnson stand on this question? He has not taken sides, at least publicly. A number of members of the Democratic party are co-sponsors of the Dirksen resolution. Senate Majority Leader Majority Leader Mike Mansfield (D., Mont.) voted for it last year.

What the Communists Are Saying About You

by Karl Baarslag

U.S. ATROCITIES IN VIETNAM
Hanoi radio frequently indulges in the bitterest invective against the United States using numerous allegations of American "atrocities" as justification. For example:
A U.S. Marine regiment and South Vietnam puppet troops on August 2 launched a violent terrorist raid on the Chau Son commune and surrounding areas about five kilometers south of Da Nang. In this raid the U.S. Marines perpetrated the most savage massacres against civilians. They used flamethrowers to burn to the ground hundreds of dwelling houses. They ruthlessly massacred children, women, and old persons. They herded children into underground shelters, threw grenades into the shelters, then pulled up the dead bodies and piled them on the ground. They herded people into houses and burned them alive.

The broadcast continued that while U.S. troops were committing these most "savage" crimes comparable to those of Hitler fascist clique, President Johnson was delivering a "deceitful speech" about peace. Why do the Americans commit these odious crimes? Hanoi explains that "U.S. aggressors having nothing left of human nature and panic stricken in the face of anti-U.S. patriotic movement of South Vietnam, are frenziedly resorting to the most odious actions." (Hanoi in English, Aug. 5, 1965, 0233 GMT.)

The more U.S. aggressors come in force to South Vietnam, the greater their crimes. They arrogantly forced the people to leave their homes and seized their land to build military bases. They broke into villages around their posts to kill old folks and children and to rape women. They are repeating the barbarous acts committed by the Hitlerite fascists. Their towering crimes cannot be tolerated by anybody.

In North Vietnam the U.S. aggressors are carrying out ever more savage bombing and strafing raids on hospitals, schools, markets and populated areas. The U.S. aggressors must pay for their blood debts. Let our people and armed forces in both zones march forward resolutely to crush the U.S. imperialists to avenge our parents, sisters, brothers, and children! (Hanoi International Service in English, 1504 GMT., August 12, 1965.)

According to Hanoi, American barbarism knows no limits. Even hospitals and leprosaria plainly marked with red crosses have been bombed and strafed. There is a method however, to such American madness. Dr. Le Van Phung, head of hospitals in the Ministry of Health for North Vietnam is quoted in a Hanoi broadcast on July 29, 1965, as charging that:
By deliberately bombing leprosy and tuberculosis centers the U.S. imperialists on the one hand intended to render the patients homeless and thus force them to live among healthy people and spread their disease, and on the other hand they plotted to kill medical workers in order to create difficulties for rescue work during air raids.

All this savagery on the part of the "U.S. imperialists", however, is of no avail in the face of "marvelous bravery of our army" and "the invincible unity of the people." The U.S. imperialists have suffered heavy defeats. The danger of their expulsion from South Vietnam is only a question of time. The U.S. imperialists are being deadlocked tactically and bewildered strategically. Johnson's policy is going from bewilderment to complete failure.

Nor can President Johnson

hope to escape paying for his crimes against the Vietnamese people, Hanoi quoting a Chinese vice premier, warns:
President Johnson is writing the dirtiest and bloodiest page in the history of U.S. aggression and falling in step behind Hitler, Mussolini, and Tojo. Since the revolutionary movement is now much larger than before, Johnson's fate cannot be better than those who preceded him. (Hanoi in Vietnamese, 1115 GMT 2 August, 1965.)

Three days later Hanoi happily broadcast that Senator Wayne Morse has told the U.S. Senate that in travelling around the United States he was "alarmed by the rising denunciation of the President and his administration for their Vietnam policy. He said that he often heard the word 'impeach' ringing in his ears during the trip. The impeachment talk largely stemmed from objections to the U.S. war policy in South Vietnam, he said." (Hanoi in English to U.S. servicemen, 1530 GMT, August 5, 1965.) (To be continued) are frenziedly resorting to the most odious actions." (Hanoi in English, Aug. 5, 1965, 0233 GMT.)

The more U.S. aggressors come in force to South Vietnam, the greater their crimes.
They arrogantly forced the people to leave their homes and seized their land to build military bases. They broke into villages around their posts to kill old folks and children and to rape women. They are repeating the barbarous acts committed by the Hitlerite fascists.
Their towering crimes cannot be tolerated by anybody.

In North Vietnam the U.S. aggressors are carrying out ever more savage bombing and strafing raids on hospitals, schools, markets and populated areas. The U.S. aggressors must pay for their blood debts.
Let our people and armed forces in both zones march forward resolutely to crush the U.S. imperialists to avenge our parents, sisters, brothers, and children! (Hanoi International Service in English, 1504 GMT.,
August 12, 1965.)

According to Hanoi, American barbarism knows no limits.
Even hospitals and leprosaria plainly marked with red crosses have been bombed and strafed.
There is a method however, to such American madness. Dr. Le Van Phung, head of hospitals in the Ministry of Health for North Vietnam is quoted in a
Hanoi broadcast on July 29, 1965, as charging that:

By deliberately bombing leprosy and tuberculosis centers the U.S. imperialists on the one hand intended to render the patients homeless and thus force them to live among healthy people and spread their disease, and on the other hand they plotted to kill medical workers in order to create difficulties for rescue work during air raids.

All this savagery on the part of the "U.S. imperialists", however, is of no avail in the face of "marvelous bravery of our army" and "the invincible unity of the people."
The U.S. imperialists have suffered heavy defeats. The danger of their expulsion from South Vietnam is only a question of time. The U.S. imperialists are being deadlocked tactically and bewildered strategically.
Johnson's policy is going from bewilderment to complete failure.

hope to escape paying for his crimes against the Vietnamese people, Hanoi quoting a Chinese vice premier, warns:

President Johnson is writing the dirtiest and bloodiest page in the history of U.S. aggression and falling in step behind
Hitler, Mussolini, and Tojo.
Since the revolutionary movement is now much larger than before, Johnson's fate cannot be better than those who preceded him. (Hanoi in Vietnamese, 1115
GMT 2 August, 1965.)

Three days later Hanoi happily broadcast that Senator
Wayne Morse has told the U.S.
Senate that in travelling around the United States he was
"alarmed by the rising denunciation of the President and his administration for their Vietnam policy. He said that he often heard the word 'impeach' ringing in his ears during the trip. The impeachment talk largely stemmed from objections to the U.S. war policy in South Vietnam, he said." (Hanoi in English to U.S. servicemen,
1530 GMT, August 5, 1965.)

Today In U.S. History

Today is Thursday, Feb. 24, the 55th day of 1966. There are 310 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1803, Chief Justice John Marshall announced the Marbury decision. The court ruled it had the power to declare invalid any act of Congress which it found unconstitutional.

On this date:

- In 1786, the first U.S. minister to Great Britain, John Adams, was appointed.
- In 1863, Arizona was organized as a territory.
- In 1920, the Nazi party was founded in Germany.
- In 1930, Charles Evans Hughes was installed as U.S. chief justice.
- In 1942, the worldwide radio network Voice of America began broadcasting.
- Ten years ago—All 19 persons aboard were killed when a Syrian Airlines plane crashed near Aleppo, Syria.
- Five years ago — The Congo government headed by Antoine Gizenga, recognized by 20 Communist and neutral nations as the legal regime, seized control of the capital of Kasai Province.
- One year ago — U.S. jet bombers, with only American crews aboard, attacked Viet Cong in South Viet Nam for the first time.

ON THE WORLD DAY OF PRAYER TOMORROW

By Grace V. Watkins

Lord, on this day of solemn prayer, Teach us a deeper, holier brotherhood With those in little churches on the bare, Snow-covered tundras, in a jungle wood, On coral islands circled with a blue Immensity of ocean. Bless them all With love-empowered faith and peace, that through The years their service may be wide and tall. And, as we lift our supplication toward Thy throne in dedicated prayer for them, Oh, keep us free from condescension, Lord Aware that oftener than we think or dream Their praying is the humbly planted seed Of victory for our times of sorest need!

A college senior who received a new car for graduation asked his favorite girl to take a ride in it. They were traveling at more than 80 miles an hour, and finally the car refused to take a sharp turn. The boy and girl landed in a pile of wreckage, and he reached over to make sure she was all right, putting his arm around her shoulder.

"This is all very nice," she replied, "but wouldn't it be easier to just run out of gas?"

—Giles H. Runyon
